Legislature Adjourns, Ending All-Time Record Session

Mooney Case Going to Supreme Court

HUGE BUDGET ORDERED BY LAWMAKERS

336 Million Asked to Run Government for Next Two Years

DRAMA MARKS TERM

Long Hours of 125-Day Meeting Featured by Dramatic Moments

SACRAMENTO, Monday, June 17. (AP)—Across the paper-strewn floors of the state legislature rang a long-awaited, even cherished, pronouncement at 12:01 a. m. today.

From the rostrum of the assembly echoed the voice of Speaker Edward Craig:

"The California legislature is adjourned sine die."

The seven words brought to an end all-time record sessions.

Longest in the history of the state, 125 days, it brings to California taxpayers an unprecedented pocketbook touch for $366,000,000 to run the government for the next two years.

Record Budget

Along with it comes a record budget of $372,000,000, which probably will be raised to nearly $400,000,000 by the end of the 1935-37 biennium, a special session of the legislature being in sight next winter to raise added funds for unemployment relief and new taxes in addition to the $115,000,000 new revenue program passed this session.

Besides the record tax and budget program, the legislature set up an unemployment insurance act, liberalized old age pensions, and provided a new mortgage moratorium law, but failed to carry out the pledges of either major party for a 30-hour week.

The last hectic hours of the long session, which dates back to January 7, saw some of the most dramatic moments of the session—moments enlivened by the snap of

Rumor Stork Is Expected By Kidnaper

TACOMA, Wash., Monday, June 17. (AP)—Will Mrs. Margaret Waley become a mother while the federal government is accusing her of being a kidnaper?

Rumor today had the stork hovering over the Thurston county jail, housing the two people accused of kidnaping 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser for $200,000.

Officers said "No," but they were having a doctor investigate.

It won't make much difference, police said, whether she becomes a mother in four months or not, as the Lindbergh law provides for life sentences, regardless.

SINO LEADER ORDERED TO QUIT POST

Charhar Governor Must Go, Says Manchoukuo Military Council

JAPANESE THREATEN

Army Will Remove Head if Chinese Government Does Not, Is Order

TOKYO, Monday, June 17. (AP)—The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency correspondent at Hsinking, Manchoukuo, reported today that the high military council at Hsinking had decided Gen. Sung Chey-Yuan, governor of Chahar province, China, must quit office.

The military council, it was reported, decided that if the Chinese National army government did not remove General Sung, the Japanese army would have to do so.

The report was interpreted as indicating the Japanese army was determined to add another Chinese province to its sphere of domination, dictating what Chinese officials shall administer office and what Chinese troops shall garrison Chahar as well as Hopei provinces.

It was from Hopei province that the Japanese ousted Gen. Yu Hsueh-Chung, who was governor there until a week ago, together with his army. Nanking government troops also are evacuating Hopei.

The Hsinking headquarters of General Jiro Minami, commander of the Kwantung army, issued a statement alleging that General Sung's troops crossed the Manchoukuan border and fired on several Manchoukuans.

Dispatches from Hsinking said it was understood that the Japanese army felt compelled to "take dractic action."

Earl E. Witten, 39, of 3323 Thorpe avenue, Los Angeles, a brakeman for the Southern Pacific Railway company, died at 3 a. m. today, and Pete Selgado, 39, of Stanton, is in the Orange County hospital near death as the result of automobile accidents in Orange county over the week-end.

The accident resulting in Mr. Witten's death occurred at 12:10 a. m. today at the railroad crossing near Loara road and Lincoln avenue, one mile west of Anaheim.

According to a report filed with Anaheim police he was in the act of flagging down a car driven by Blair Little of 711 North Main street, Santa Ana, to prevent the machine from running into a freight train crossing the highway. Little apparently failed to see the brakeman, his car struck him and then crashed into a ditch, injuring Miss Geraldine Stinett, 419 North Lemon street, Orange, a passenger in his car.

26th Fatality

Mr. Witten's death marks the 26th fatality from auto accidents in Orange county since January 1.

He leaves a widow, Louise E. Witten and two daughters, Elitha and Anna. The body is at Backs, Terry & Campbell.

Salgado was taken to the county hospital at 11:30 p. m. Saturday,

MIDGET NRA IS STARTED

New Leaders Announce 'Selling Campaign' for Recovery Unit

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 17. (AP)—The three key men of the midget NRA set out today on an attempt to "sell" its principles to the public, business and labor.

These men—headed by James L. O'Neill, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York—planned a selling campaign on what was termed an "educational" basis—not a high pressure effort such as characterized the birth of the original Blue Eagle. They may use a changed Blue Eagle as their emblem.

Leon C. Marshall was appointed as head of the "division of review" to survey the effects of the old codes, demolished by the supreme court, and assemble the data. A second division set up by the president was the "division of business cooperation," with Prentiss L. Coonley as its head. Its purpose will be "to aid in the voluntary maintenance by trade and industrial groups of standards of fair competition."

The old NRA expired last midnight. A few hours before that President Roosevelt, in an executive order, formally created the new "stop gap" NRA enacted by congress last week, and named O'Neill as acting administrator.

STATE BODY ISSUES WRIT FOR BOMBER

Act Insures Hearing in Highest Tribunal for Longtime Prisoner

TO STUDY SENTENCE

Paper Must Be Returned June 27 When Date Will Be Settled

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, June 17. (AP)—The California state supreme court today issued a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Thomas J. Mooney, convicted San Francisco Preparedness day bomber. The writ is returnable June 27.

Issuance of the writ brings the question of the legality of Mooney's 18-year imprisonment into the state's highest tribunal for the first time.

In 1918, the supreme court denied a petition for a writ of coram nobis, and the action was generally taken to mean that Mooney had no remedy in the state courts for his conviction on assertedly perjured testimony.

However, Chief Justice William H. Waste pointed out today that this is the first opportunity the supreme court has had to pass on the habeas corpus action.

SEAPLANE ON RETURN HOP

MIDWAY ISLAND (Via Pan-American Radio), Monday, June 17. (AP)—Flying "blind," the Pan-American Clipper seaplane hopped off today for Honolulu on its return flight to the United States mainland.

Immediately after the giant ship rose into the air after a graceful takeoff, all curtains were drawn and pilots were compelled to rely solely on instruments for direction, speed and altitude.

BEGIN MOVE TO END RELIEF

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—Belief the coming year would mark the real beginning of "picking up the greater part of the unemployment slack" was expressed today by President Roosevelt.

Talking to the state works administrators in his office, he directed them to slow down or even stop the public works projects when opportunity afforded to put the federal workers on private payrolls.

Clara 'Tiger' Phillips Free; Officers Seek Mate in Santa Ana

Acting on a tip that Clara Phillips, freed from Tehachapi prison today, was to meet her husband, A. L. Phillips, here, local sheriff's officers were on the lookout for Mr. Phillips, who is wanted here on a charge of grand theft.

On August 27, 1934, officers state, the husband of the woman who slew Alberta Meadows with a hammer, was given two blocks of bonds worth $5000 and $125 in cash by W. L. Lytel of Yorba Linda. Phillips, according to arrangements made with Mr. Lytel, took the bonds to Los Angeles and sold them. With the money from the sale he was to have bought Russian bonds worth 250,000 rubles for Mr. Lytel, but he never returned with either the money or the bonds, it is charged.

Local officers have been looking for Phillips constantly since the charge was made, but it was not until his wife was

COUNTY MAY SEEK HELP

Supervisors to Meet Saturday for Study of Relief Problem

Probability that Orange and other southern counties will appeal directly to Washington for assistance in carrying an almost impossible relief load will be discussed Saturday at a meeting of supervisions of California counties in Los Angeles.

Decision to call the conference was reached Saturday at a meeting in San Diego when Chairman Edgar F. Hastings of San Diego described the new federal relief program as "an apparent gouging of the counties" by state and federal agencies. Supervisors at the meeting represented Orange, San Diego, Imperial and Riverside counties.

San Diego supervisors arranged the conference following announcement that after June 30 all unemployables now on SERA rolls will be turned back to the counties for aid has been estimated that this new program will approximately double this county's welfare costs.

Supervisor W. C. Jerome, representing Orange county at the conference, declared "it is high time for southern counties to appeal directly to Washington for assistance in carrying a relief load they cannot carry."

C. OF C. HOLDS WITHDRAWAL

The board of directors of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce today refused to rescind its action in withdrawing from the Associated Chambers of Commerce, but authorized appointment of a committee to work with that body in revising its constitution and by-laws. If any when such revision is made, the question of rejoining the Associated will be submitted by the committee to the local chamber.

This decision was reached at the local directors' session in James' cafe at noon today after a letter was received from George Kellogg, president of the Associated, asking reconsideration of the withdrawal. The local board, in withdrawing, had objected that the Associated took action binding upon local chambers without first referring the matters to the local bodies.

Secretary Howard I. Wood announced that there will be a joint meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., at which the retail division of the chamber and the Business Men's association will seek to work out uniform opening and closing hours for business houses. Next Monday night the flood control committee will stage a meeting for members at which recent developments in the water situation will be outlined.

Dr. Walter L. Bigham of Anaheim today was president of the State Association of County Planning Commissions. He was elected unanimously at a convention of the State organization at San Diego on Saturday.

Dr. Bigham, who has been chairman of the Orange County Planning commission since its formation, was installed immediately. He succeeds W. H. Jahant, chairman of the Kern County Planning commission.

Practically all theOrange county planning body was present at the convention. Supervisor W. C. SUPERVISOR'S OIL STORY IS TOLD

Entire Senate Branded With Inferences of Strange Dealings

CRITICIZES EDWARDS

Needs More Time to Go Into Question of Just What Happened

Who killed Cock Robin?

"Something happened over night."

Senator Nels Edwards "ducked" the roll call.

Senator Ralph Swing mysteriously switched and did not support the bill for island drilling at Huntington Beach.

A deluge of telegrams opposing the island bill were without question inspired by one of the big oil companies.

Issues Statement

This, in effect, was the expose of the Huntington Beach oil situation, made today by Supervisor N. E. West of Laguna Beach, who was scheduled to blow the lid off another Teapot Dome scandal in connection with the Huntington Beach oil controversy.

Mr. West, who had been at Sacramento working for the island bill, had returned today. He issued a lengthy statement. He also said his recent statement about legislators being dominated by big business was meant to mean that practically the entire senate was so controlled, and not just a few men to whom he talked.

"Common Gossip"

Mr. West did not attempt to answer the question "Who Killed Cock Robin?" but said it was common gossip at Sacramento that something happened overnight. What it was the public may never know, he said.

While Mr. West produced no direct evidence or specific facts to back up the claim of scandal, he suggested that he would like to have more time to dig into the matter, and pointed out that in the great Teapot Dome scandal it took several years to bring out all the

RECALL MOVE IS LAGGING

The recall movement at Huntington Beach, aimed at Mayor T. B. Talbert, Councilmen Anthony Tovatt and J. H. Marion, appeared to be running a losing race today. With 383 signatures required on recall petitions, and 5 p. m. today as the deadline for obtaining them, recall supporters today filed with City Clerk Charles R. Furr petitions far short of the required number of names.

The petitions contained 17 signatures against Mr. Tovatt and Mr. Marion and 21 against Mr. Talbert. Whether all petitions were filed or not was not revealed by Ova Nelson, who deposited them with the clerk.

An extension of time was understood to have been requested, but none was granted. The movement has been fostered by Elson G. Conrad, former mayor, and Frank Morris.

'Gin Law' Recall May Be Aid

Lovelorn couples are watching and waiting while Gov. Frank Merriam is deciding whether or not he will sign the repeal of this state's "gin marriage" or three-day license law recently approved by the legislature. At the same time Orange county officials are waiting, not because of any romantic leanings, but because repeal of the law would mean additional revenue for the county.

For many years prior to adoption of the "gin marriage" law in July, 1927, Santa Ana was a Gretna Green for Southern California couples that had been bitten by the "love bug."

Proof of Orange county's popularity with couples intent on matrimony is found in records of the license bureau. These records show that prior to inauguration of the three-day period of waiting between the filing of a notice of intention to wed and issuance of the license, the number of licenses issued here annually averaged 1000 more than in the years after the law became active.

County Clerk J. M. Backs said today that in June, 1927, the month before the "three-day" law became active, there were 635 licenses issued here, setting an all-time county record. In 1927, with the law operative after July, the total number of licenses issued was 4587. In 1926 there were 5026 licenses issued, making that the peak year in county history.

In 1928, the year after adoption of the "gin marriage" law, licenses issued in the county dropped to 3548. The greatest number issued since that time was in 1934 when 4092 couples secured licenses.

County Clerk Backs pointed out today that should the measure be signed by Governor Merriam, revenue of the bureau should increase by approximately $2000 a year, based on past years' records.

THE DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 17.—Inside word is that Roosevelt has three names under consideration as successor to Don Richberg as NRA chairman. All members are Blue Eagle big shots—Dr. Leon C. Marshall and Charles Edison, members of the board, and James L. O'Neill, control officer. Marshall, a former Johns Hopkins professor and Brookings Institution executive, is whispered as the man Richberg is backing for the job. . . . Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York has a new name for lawyers who oppose liberal legislation by raising technical objections. Appearing before a House committee in favor of the Wagner low-cost housing bill, he called them "semi-colon boys." . . . It is an ill wind that blows no one good. Before the supreme court handed down its anti-NRA decision, Madame Perkins was in mortal fear that her department would be reduced to a mere statistical agency. Now the labor department's conciliation service is so overwhelmed with work that the President has approved a request for an additional $600,000 appropriation to enlarge the staff. If congress votes the money Miss Perkins will immediately add 25 to the present staff of 35 conciliators. Eventually she may build up a corps of 100.

County Furnishing Program

San Diego will be the mecca for Orange county people Thursday when they leave here for the southern city to participate in Orange county's official day at the exposition.

They will take along their own entertainment, making it possible for exposition visitors from all over the world to enjoy the outstanding musicians and musical organizations of this county.

Arrangements have been made with exposition officials to turn over both afternoon and evening programs at the big Spreckles organ to Orange county talent. The major portion of the afternoon program will feature the Cantando club, sponsored by The Journal, in a concert. More than 60 of the county's leading male singers will take part in the club program. Miss Ruth Armstrong, club accompanist, will play for the San Diego concert.

The organization, under direction of Leon Eckles, has been rehearsing for several weeks, preparing for the appearance. Mr. Eckles has announced that the one and one-half hour program, to be given in the afternoon from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, will feature the most popular selections sung by the club during its concert series here this winter.

The program will be opened shortly after noon with the Orange county band, under direction of T. Dunstan Collins, presenting a concert from 12:30 until 1:30 o'clock. Another concert by the Orange County band will be featured from 5 to 6 p. m.

Three of Orange county's leading soloists, one a violinist and the other two vocalists, will present the evening concert from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Sally Cole Mueller and Christe Butge being the vocalists, and John Hart Stout the violinist. Mrs. J. E. Cole will play the piano accompaniment for Mrs. Mueller and Miss Leonore Thompkins will accompany Mr. Butge and Mr. Stout.

RISING WATERS FRIGHTEN LOWLAND FARMERS IN SOUTH TEXAS

12 DEAD, WHILE HUNDREDS ARE MAROONED

Flood Damage Estimated at Over $2,500,000 by Austin Mayor

AUSTIN, Tex., Monday, June 17. (AP)—Lowland dwellers and farmers in southern Texas viewed rising streams with alarm today as flood waters began receding in the central portion of the state.

The known death list stood at 12, and fears were expressed that more bodies would be found. Hundreds of persons still were marooned and many highways were impassable because of damage to hundreds of bridges. Damage was estimated at more than $2,500,000 by Mayor Tom Miller. The municipal light plant was flooded, leaving the city without lights. The water supply was rationed out.

FLOOD THREAT IN COLORADO REDUCED

DENVER, Monday, June 17. (AP)—Cool weather reduced the flood threat today in Colorado's mountain country but brought new danger of high water to the plains region.

Cloudbursts last night again filled dry gulches and sent streams out of their banks. At Bethune, in extreme east central Colorado, the steel bridge of the Rock Island railroad was washed away after an inch of rain.

MORE ABOUT OIL CASE

facts and place them before the public.

The island drilling proposition, at least for the present, is dead. The senate refused to agree to it after the assembly had approved the program.

30 Days to Sign

The whipstock bill, providing for slant drilling from Standard Oil company land along the Huntington Beach bluffs, now rests on the desk of Governor Merriam. Mr. West has predicted that the executive will sign it.

Adjournment of the legislature at 12:01 a. m. today gives the governor 30 days in which to sign the whipstock bill. Had the legislature remained in session all day, the bill would have become law at midnight tonight, without his signature.

Mayor T. B. Talbert, Councilman Leland S. Chamness and James S. Farquhar, publisher of the Huntington Beach News, went to Sacramento last night to urge the governor to approve the whipstock measure.

Bill's Provisions

If the whipstock bill is signed, drilling must be started within 60 days according to an agreement signed by the City of Huntington Beach, the Standard, Signal and Hancock Oil companies, the Huntington Beach Land company and the Pacific Electric Railway company. A $25,000 bonus in cash would be paid the city at the drilling of the first well. City officials estimate royalty income to the city under the bill would be about $100,000.

The whipstock bill provides fo exploitation of the state's oil resources at Huntington Beach on a basis whereby the city would receive 3 percent and the state 16⅔ percent. Approximately 52 wells would be drilled on Standard land.

Recall Move Began

The island bill provided a 3 percent royalty to the city, a like royalty to Orange county and 20 percent to the state until the cost of drilling was returned. After that the state's share woud have been 30 percent.

A movement was under way at Huntington Beach for recall of Mayor Talbert, Councilmen Anthony Tovatt and J. H. Marion as an aftermath of their activity. They are accused of building a political machine, incompetence and neglect of duty, as well as extravagance. The Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce has backed them up.

Mr. West's complete statement follows:

Another Scandal

"The scandal that has been brewing over the Huntington Beach tideland oil pool is only another chapter in the history of the oil business. No other great American industry has been responsible for so large a number of scandals, state and national, as that of the oil business. Financial giants and high public officials, including a member of a president's cabinet, have been indicted and tried before various courts of the land. A strange fact running through the history of the oil business is the large number of investigations and indictments, compared to the few convictions obtained or penalties imposed.

"Even where convictions have been obtained the penalties have rarely been paid. As an example in 1911, the Federal Court found the Standard Oil company a monopoly and guilty of crimes against the public. A fine of 29 million dollars was levied. And this great oil monopoly of 26 Broadway, New York city, was ordered dissolved into 20 odd competing companies or groups. Today many of the companies resulting from this dissolution by court decree are larger and more powerful than the parent company ordered dissolved by the court. The 29 million dollar fine was never paid.

"Few who read even the newspaper story of the trial of the Standard Oil company will forget the heartless sordid and wholly inhuman practices revealed in the evidence at the trial. There seems to be something in the very nature of the oil business which transfers the slippery quality of the substance itself to those who deal in it. Witness the array of charges and indictments of the Talbots, Fullers, Dohenys, Falls and so on back to the King Fish of the oil industry himself.

Fight By Public

"However, a gallant fight has been made by the public and its officials, who sometimes combine intelligence, courage and honesty, for fair dealings in this great natural resource of the country. But the public has seldom won a skirmish and never a major engagement. I predict that the public is licked in the case of the Huntington Beach oil field and will remain licked until huge money can cease to corrupt elected officials, and until the mass of voters become sufficiently informed and interested as to be no longer deluded by smoke screen issues raised by stockholders, employees and others with a selfish interest.

"About the state oil pool at Huntington Beach there are two simple propositions. First: will the taxpayers of this state demand that this oil be developed on behalf of the public who owns it? Second: How can the public's rightful ownership to this wealth be realized?

"Proposition No. 11 voted on by the people in 1932 proposed to turn over to this state owned oil reservoir to the City of Huntington Beach. The state would have gotten nothing unless Huntington Beach had in turn leased this oil field on a royalty basis. In this event the state was to receive one-half of the royalty. The voters turned down this propositions. I believe the public would the more readily oppose turning this public wealth over to Standard Oil company.

The Royalty Question

"Assembly bill No. 1684, now on the governor's desk proposes, not the turning over this oil field to the City of Huntington Beach but to the Standard Oil company, and on a royalty, of 16⅔ percent to the state compared to 36 percent royalty basis that has actually been offered the public. It is generally believed that 40 or 45 percent royalty could be realized on an honest competitive bid by a responsible company.

"The Standard Oil company owns all the shore line fronting this field. It is obvious, therefore, that no one can take this oil except on the Standard Oil's terms or by drilling from the tidelands. And here is the crux of the opposition from those who would see the public deprived of its share in this greatest known state owned wealth.

"Those who oppose drilling from the tide waters may be divided into two classes: (a) those who honestly and sincerely fear the polution of the beaches; (b) those who have a selfish interest in robbing the public of this vast wealth and their employees or those otherwise subservient to the 'inspired slogans.'

Many Telegrams

"During the recent debate in the assembly and senate at Sacramento on the Huntington Beach question, almost every legislator had large sheaves of telegrams. A great percentage of these were without question inspired by one of the great oil companies. In fact one after another of these telegrams were verbatim and were shown to come from the employees of the oil company and their relatives who vigorously proclaimed themselves as unalterably opposed to the polution of the beaches.

"It is hard to believe that any one, not dictated to by his employer, or otherwise selfishly benefitting, would favor putting oil wells in the tidelands of this coast line, if he had knowledge or was convinced that there was real danger of poluting the beaches.

"For my part, after going into this question of danger of polution with several competent and unprejudiced oil men, and after listening to a large number of experts at the recent oil hearing in Huntington Beach, all of whom testified that the oil from this Huntington Beach pool could be developed from its tidewaters without any real danger of poluting the beaches. I much prefer to see the taxpayers benefit from this public owned resource, than to see it turned over as a reward to private greed and cupidity.

Favors Competition

"The largest property owner in the county, who owns several miles of the finest coastline property in Orange county, favors competitive development of this oil field. Most of my own property fronts on the bathing beach at Laguna. But I am not as much afraid of polution from tideland developing as I am of having my property value destroyed by ever mounting taxes, while the state surrenders to vested interest its great natural resource.

"All during this fight I have urged the right of the public to the benefits of competitive bidding in this field. After Assembly bill No. 1684 was presented, allowing the state only 16 2-3 per cent, the county nothing, and a supposed 3 per cent to the City of Huntington Beach, I favored the Gillmore proposition, not because I thought it gave the people all they should have, but according to those in the assembly backing the measure, it offered the public the best it could hope for. The 36 per cent offered was nearly double what the Standard Assembly bill No. 1684 offered the public. And of vast importance to the people of this county, we would have received a 3 per cent royalty, or an estimated annual income of from $400,000 to $500,000 for the next 30 years or more. With 41 printed pages of delinquent tax properties in Orange county this $400,000 or $500,000 of new revenue should especially be welcomed.

"While this oil fight is first a state issue, I have contended that the County of Orange and the City of Huntington Beach, because of their location and expenditures in developing this area, should participate directly in the royalties from production—though neither city nor county have any legal rights to this oil.

Interprets Bill

"Just what can the public expect in royalties, from oil taken from this state owned pool whether the governor does, or does not sign Assembly Bill No. 1684? The answer to this is little or nothing in addition to what it is now receiving.

"First the bill does not require the Standard Oil to drill further wells into this pool from shore, secondly, if they should drill they would be required to pay the state 16 2-3 per cent production from all new wells. The Standard Oil company already has 28 wells, six of which are whipstocked into the state's pool, and 22 of which are drilled at the edge of the bluff or beach. On the oil produced from these wells the Standard is paying no royaylty. It can not be made to pay royalty on any of these wells except possibly the 6 that are slanted into the state oil. Competent geologists say the 22 vertical wells are draining, and can continue to drain a substantial part of the state pool indirectly due to the pervious nature of the oil sand and the migratory nature of the oil itself. So what? The Standard Oil company will naturally produce as little as possible from whipstock wells on which it pays a royalty and drain as much of the state oil as it can from its vertical wells on which it pays no royalty, either to the state, city or county. Hence, the Standard Oil company will take the oil, with but little royalty, whether Assembly bill No. 1684 is signed or vetoed.

"Smoke Screen"

"Those who are not informed or convinced of the technological ability to produce this oil from the tidelands without danger of polluting the beaches will naturally resign themselves to the fact that the public cannot do anything to prevent this colossal theft. However, those who have raised and financed the argument of beach pollution are well aware that it is only a smoke screen, and many of these advocates have so confessed in private. Yet they feel that they must do what the uninformed public have been scared into demanding of them.

"For example, Speaker Craig of the assembly and Senator Edwards both willingly admit the "SAVE THE BEACHES" issue is only an alibi, which literally means not "SAVE THE BEACHES FOR THE PEOPLE," but rather "SAVE THE STATE OIL POOL FOR THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY." Yet they both supported assembly bill No. 1684, which would give the Standard Oil company this oil, and Speaker Craig opposed Senate Bill No. 959, which would have given the public nearly double the royalty obtainable under the Standard Oil bill, including a 3 per cent royalty to Orange county.

"Apparently these two representatives prefer to deprive the people of this great wealth which some have 'ignorantly' demanded, instead of protecting it for the people, which they confess should be done.

"It was encouraging to find that James B. Utt, our representative, whose district covers the coast line, has not been confused by inspired telegrams or smoke screen issues, and has fought straight through for the public's right.

No. 959 Killed

"Senate bill No. 959, providing competitive development of this oil field, passed the assembly, 46 to 32. A poll of the Senate Thursday night, June 13, was reported to show a favorable vote in the senate by at least 2 or 3 majority. Yet the following morning, when the measure came up, Senator Swing, who had agreed to handle the bill, suddenly and mysteriously requested the assembly amendment be not concurred in. Thus the measure met the death of Cock Robin, Senator Edwards ducking the roll call. Apparently there was nothing in writing, but gossip was common around the corridors and the capitol grounds that something happened overnight. What it was the public may never know. We recall it took the United States Department of Justice and the best legal brains in the country several years to run down and prove the Tea Pot Dome scandal. This has the same unsavory smell as that scandal did for years before it became a matter of court record. Maybe those who switched the last few hours will give the public some explanation other than that their sudden conversion against the measure was the result of inspired telegrams which they received.

"If there is anything more pathetic or tragic in government than IGNORANCE IN ACTION, it is a corrupted leadership deluding the people to their own great loss. Senator Swing and Assemblyman Lyon were reported to have withdrawn their support from this bill because they found out that the governor did not favor it. Even if true, this would be a poor excuse for turning the people down."

MORE ABOUT LEGISLATURE

tempers worn thin by weeks and months of 16-hour days.

Good Natured Ending

Biting criticism, bitter recriminations, clenched fists ready to fight but restrained by the more even-tempered of the legislature, were written into those last hours.

But an hour before adjournment, good nature replaced ill feeling. Fifteen minutes before Speaker Craig adjourned the session, Gov. Merriam appeared and bade the legislators God-speed.

The drive down the home stretch to adjournment witnessed action in the last 36 hours upon these major pieces of legislation:

1. Defeat of the Gilmore bill to increase truck taxes by $1,800,000 amid charges by Senator Olson, Los Angeles, that "there have been rumors of big sums of money being spent in the legislative corridors on this bill," the vote was 21 to 8.

2. Defeat in the senate, 19-9, of the $19,000,000 Kallam bill imposing a one to five-cent severance tax on casinghead gasoline, natural gas and oil.

Auto Tax Passes

3. Junking of the $6,000,000 Lyon one-percent real estate transfer tax in the assembly.

4. Passage of the Duval bill transferring automobile property taxes from cities and counties to the state, with $15,000,000 going to the state and $11,000,000 to cities and counties. The senate concurred in assembly amendments.

5. Passage, 32 to 0, by the senate of the Cottrell unemployment insurance act establishing weekly benefits from $7 to $15, with employers paying one per cent of their payrolls the first year, two per cent the second and three per cent the third, and thereafter, and employes contributing half of one per cent of their salaries the first two years and one per cent the third and following years.

6. Veto by Gov. Merriam of the Garrison-Jesperson bill enabling municipalities to issue revenue bonds upon a majority vote of the people for the establishment of public utilities or acquisition of them. The governor claimed the bill violated sound economic principles, principally in permitting unlimited bond issues without a two-thirds vote of the people.

7. Defeat by the assembly of an attempt to repeal the criminal syndicalism laws.

Approve Bond Election

8. Approval of a special election August 13 upon the question of issuing $13,950,000 in bonds for improvements to state institutions and state negotiations for short term loans to finance the estimated deficit of $25,000,000 for the 1933-35 biennium.

9. Approval of the Sharkey resolution putting upon the next general election ballot the question of repealing the permanent registration law and delegating to the legislature the power to set up a system of registration of voters.

10. Defeat in the senate of the Redwine-Jones act to exclude paupers, indigents, vagabonds, hoboes and other undesirables from the state, opponents claiming it was a "thoroughly un-American measure." The vote was 21 to 13.

11. Prospects of a constitutional convention were killed in the assembly, where the third attempt to provide such a conference to rewrite the complicated California constitution was defeated in rejection of the Evans bill calling for a convention in 1936.

12. The senate, 27 to 8, killed the anti-injunction bill, passed by the assembly. It would prevent a nemployer from obtaining a court order in a labor dispute to restrain an employe from joining a union, stopping work or paying money to a person involved in a dispute, supplying information about a strike or boycotting.

13. Investigation of charges that the industrial accident commission management of the workmen's compensation fund was being managed unfairly was authorized by the senate.

Oil Bill Killed

14. A committee was empowered to investigate the feasibility of public ownership of utilities by the state.

15. A last-minute attempt to open the rich Huntington Beach tideland oil pool to drilling from artificial islands was killed for the fourth time in the assembly, 41 to 34, amid charges of "trickery" by opponents.

16. The Peyser bill extending the provisions of the mortgage moratorium act to chattel morgages pledged as additional security to the real property mortgage was passed in the senate.

17. The Nielsen bill carrying out the provisions of the civil service act voted by the people last fall to put 6,000 state employes out of the reach of patronage was voted in the senate.

18. The assembly, for the second time, defeated the Garrison bill setting up a purity of elections law.

19. Senator Seawell's omnibus road bill to add about 500 miles of county highways to parliamentary maneuvering, being sent to reprint after being amended and failing to reach the floor again before adjournment.

No Money to L. A.

20. Assemblyman Minard dropped the controversial bill proposing California's participation in an oil conservation compact with other western states.

21. Comically, the bill originally providing a $500,000 appropriation to aid Los Angeles in acquiring lands for buildings at the Pacific Exposition of 1938 was cut to $25,000 in the assembly, to $5,000 and then $1 in the senate and finally refused passage when returned to the house. Opponents claimed Los Angeles should provide its own money.

Thus came to an end what many observers viewed as the most controversial session in legislative history of the state, a session in which nearly 4,000 pieces of legislation were presented.

Other accidents in the county resulted in the injury of seven persons.

Girl on Motorbike Hurt

Miss Madaline Best, 18, of 602 Garfield, Santa Ana, escaped serious injury when the motorcycle on which she was sitting, parked at the curb in the 300 block on South Main street, suddenly slipped in gear and sped across the road into a car driven by Edgar H. Spicer, 18, 2415 North Main street. The motorcycle was owned by Glenn R. Kenney of Garden Grove.

Others Injured

George E. Shoebridge, 54, of 316 Edgewood road, sustained lacerations about the face Saturday night, when his car collided with one driven by H. T. Foust, 823 South Main street. The accident occurred in front of the Foust residence when Mr. Foust was backing his car out of the driveway.

A headon collision on highway 101 one mile south of Anaheim at 1:15 a. m. yesterday, between cars driven by Ray F. Castillo, 22, Anaheim, and H. Burton Phillips, 27, of Pomona, resulted in four persons being taken to the county hospital for first aid treatment. Those injured were Mr. and Mrs. H. Burton Phillips, E. D. Phillips and Miss Claudie Higuera, 22, of Anaheim. Castillo told officers he had fallen asleep while driving, and that his car had crossed the highway into the path of the other machine.

MORE ABOUT PHILLIPS

freed today that any authentic tip on his whereabouts had been received.

TEHACHAPI, Calif., Monday, June 17. (AP) — The woman they called a tiger because she slew another woman with a hammer, Clara Phillips walked out of prison doors today.

It was 7:35 o'clock in the morning.

"I can hardly believe it's true," she said with eyes bright, hands shaking and voice aquiver. She was nervous, agitated, wholly unlike the woman 15 years ago who was arrested for beating Alberta Meadows to death in a secluded hillspot in eastern Los Angeles.

She looked more like an actress than a woman being released after being held more than 12 years in the state penitentiary on a charge of murder.

A small black hat fit snugly over her waved hair, a longish bob, and she was a blue and white flowered dress.

Under the California law her prison sentence on conviction for second degree murder was indeterminate—10 years to life. Before commitment to the state prison she escaped from the Los Angeles county jail and was arrested months later in Honduras and returned to pay the debt to society for the killing of the woman she suspected of intimacy with her husband.

It was a small automobile in which she left the state prison, not unlike the machine in which she drove Alberta Meadows up the brown hillside road July 12, 1922, and then walked her to the fatal beating and death.

There were tears in her eyes as she entered the car today with her sister, Mrs. Etta Mae Jackson. Her smile was a nervous smile.

Her sister said they would drive to Los Angeles, but she does not intend to remain there long, saying that she planned to go east.

Five pieces of baggage were stowed away in the car, three of them musical instruments, a banjo, saxophone and violin, for she had organized an orchestra in the women's prison.

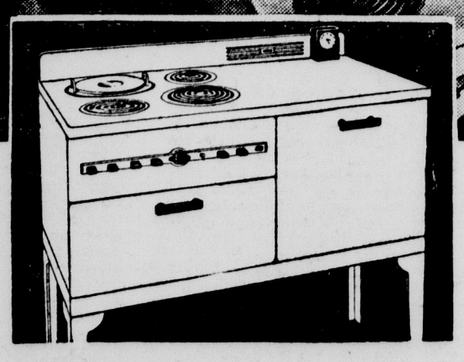

Husband Waiting

There were two automobiles in the going away party. The woman in the second car did not disclose her identity, saying she was merely a friend. Armour Phillips, husband of the woman who now is 36 years of age, was not at the prison gates. When or where he would meet her was not disclosed, her only comment about him having been that he was "standing by."

Mrs. Phillips said she has no plans for the present, but later may follow up the dentistry she has been studying while prisoner, and take the state examination. She will first visit her mother, Mrs. Ola Weaver, at Le Mesa, near San Diego.

BALBOA ISLAND PROPERTY OWNERS MAP PLANS FOR SEAWALL

CONSTRUCTION WOULD COST $125,000

PWA Will Be Asked to Aid Financing of New Project

BALBOA ISLAND, Monday, June 17.—Property owners and residents of Balboa Island mapped out a program for construction of a $125,000 seawall around the island at a meeting in the Balboa Yacht club Friday night. The improvements project would be a strong, uniformly designed wall which would beautify the island and increase property values.

After hearing the seawall plan outlined, the group named Harry L. Parks, chairman of the Newport Beach city planning commission and prominent Balboa Island resident, to head the citizens group which will conduct a survey of the sentiment of island residents and property owners and will prepare detailed information on the subject.

Mr. Parks selected Dr. Howard W. Seagar as chairman of a committee of 10 to investigate the seawall plan, outline a tentative program and report back to a second meeting of property owners tomorrow night. The committee includes Mrs. A. S. Richardson, Mrs. Harry Rider, Mrs. Gertrude Waldron, Donald Beach Kirby, J. B. Parks, Judge Granger Hiers, C. W. Rutter, John Legg and Antone Hershey.

At a recent meeting of the Newport Beach city council, the seawall program was one of the nine Public Works Administration projects suggested to cover a 10-year building period, by City Engineer R. L. Patterson. More than a million dollars would be expended on the nine proposed projects.

Since the present retaining wall around the island is patched and in places has collapsed, leaders in favor of the movement claim the need of a new wall is imperative. The committee is considering a special design and underwater lights for the wall which would enhance the beauty of the island.

According to present plans, the PWA program will be followed out. This calls for the preparation of detailed plans and specifications for the proposed seawall and the endorsement of residents. City officials would then be petitioned to form an assessment district for a bond issue. The $125,000 necessary for the project would be obtained by a 45 per cent federal grant and a 55 per cent loan at 4 per cent over a long period of time.

SCIENCE CHURCH SUNDAY TOPIC ON 'PRESERVER OF MAN'

"God the Preserver of Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text was from the Proverbs: "The Lord giveth wisdom: . . . He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints."

One of the Scriptural citations in the Lesson-Sermon included the verses from John: "Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me. I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness. And if any may hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world."

The Lesson-Sermon, presented also the statements from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

Knit or Crochet Your Own Collars

PATTERN 5374

Top your dress with handmade neckwear and you'll be right in step with Fashion's latest. With knitting needles clicking wherever one goes, you will be right in the swim if you knit your neckwear. If crocheting is your choice, the lovely lacy jabot will fill your bill. The round collar in perle cotton is knitted in a simple lacy stitch—points solid, the open part in a fagoting effect. The vestee with turn down collar is straight ahead knitting in a simple pattern that is repeated throughout. And the whole thing is made of two straight strips, so what could be easier? The crocheted jabot is in one straight piece joined at the center. It is lacy and has the flare that makes a jabot graceful.

In pattern 5374 you will find complete instructions for making the two knitted collars and the crocheted jabot shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Santa Ana Journal, Household Arts Dept. 117 E. Fifth St. Santa Ana, Calif.

TO ASK AID IN MOVING BUILDING AT COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Monday, June 17.—An attempt to save the Costa Mesa school district $3000 will be made soon through application for SERA assistance in moving the auditorium of the elementary school into place to join the new school building. Members of the Costa Mesa school board authorized Perrine and Mackie, architects for the new structure, to make the application at a meeting Friday night.

If the assistance is granted, the $3000 could be used for other necessary school work, according to Harry Aldrich, board member. Should the project not be approved by SERA officials, only a brief delay would result and the auditorium could still be moved to its new position with funds already budgeted for the purpose.

Board members also approved the addition of a half-time music course for the elementary school during the next year, and added Mrs. Ruth McKenzie to the faculty to take charge of the new department. Mrs. McKenzie is well known in musical and club circles in Orange county.

HUNTINGTON BEACH CRASH HURTS TWO

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Monday, June 17.—Two persons were injured and a 5-year-old boy escaped unscathed when Michael T. Joyce, Los Angeles, lost control of his car while traveling along east Ocean avenue Saturday evening and it turned over three times, coming to rest on the Pacific Electric right of way. Officers booked him on charges of drunken driving.

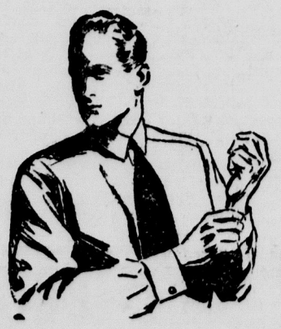

Mrs. Lucy Munoz, 28, Los Angeles, riding in the car with Joyce, was treated by Dr. L. F. Whittaker and taken to the county hospital by Police Chief George M. Gelzer. She was badly bruised and cut up. Joyce received a gash over his left eye. Mrs. Munoz's young son, Claude, was uninjured.

SPEEDER LEARNS COSTLY LESSON

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Monday, June 17.—Don Austin, 17, of Los Angeles, has learned his lesson about reckless driving at an early age. Yesterday afternoon he was racing throuh traffic along Ocean boulevard at 60 miles per hour when he spied Motorcycle Officer L. F. Keller.

He applied his brakes, but skidded across the street and into a lot at 17th street, breaking two wheels and damaging the car considerably. Officer Keller deduced that Austin had learned his lesson and did not write a ticket.

JIM BROWNING TOPS WRESTLING CARD HERE

Column Left!

By FRANK ROGERS

LOOK WHO'S GOING TO WIN THE FLAG!

You may take it (we can't) from Frankie Frisch, pugnacious pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, 1934 world champs, that the Cards are going to repeat this year.

With 100 games left in the season, the wise birds have picked the Giants to hang onto their lead and do some fall work for the world champoinship. "So they're counting us out, are they?" says Frisch in between arguments with the Dean boys. "Well, let 'em. They had a fine time doing it last year, didn't they? And who had the last laugh?

"The Giants are a sweet ball club, but we don't concede them an inch. We won in the stretch last time and we can do it again, if we have to. And I'm not sure we will," he says.

All very fine talk and exactly the way a manager should talk. But a manager who has such temperamental baseball performers as the Dean boys—upon whom so much depend—had best not talk that way above a whisper.

From our long-range seat it looks as though New Yorkers will have the world's series entirely in their back yard, with the Yanks and Giants battling it out. There is a chance, however, that the Pittsburgh Pirates will overtake the Giants.

They are strictly the class team of the National loop, even if they are but a couple of games ahead of the clattering Cardinals.

Mention dissension, the boys say, and Frisch leaps with excitement. "Dissension helped us win last year—and it's keeping us on our toes this year. Maybe the other clubs could use some, too."

One of the brightest spots of the season for Frisch and the rest of the Cards is the spectacular comeback of Charlie Gelbert, ace shortstop who had been out of action for two years because of a gunshot wound in the leg.

"He looks as good as ever," said Frisch. "We had him in there a few games and he scampered about like a colt. He's staging one of the greatest comebacks in baseball's history."

NIGHT WORK LOOMS FOR GREYHOUNDS HERE

The law gods permitting, the American Legion drum and bugle corps may install lights at the old county fair grounds track soon, according to Bob Walker. The measure permitting parimutel betting on the pups is now awaiting Governor Merriam's signature but that does not mean for certain that the local track will change its status, Walker says.

The state racing commission may decide to keep this oval strictly for training purposes once legal betting is instituted—if not, the boys may install a "tote" machine. In any event, night work for the doggies seems certain as the afternoons are proving too warm for racing purposes.

CRIPPLED FREDDIE CAN PICK THE DOGS

Crippled Freddie Carson, Santa Ana's smiling newsboy, picked three winners, a pair of seconds and a third in the greyhound races at the county fair grounds yesterday. Freddie is a weekly visitor at the track. It takes him around 12 minutes to make the journey in his wheel-chair. . . . Viewing the races for the first time, Charley Greenleaf of the Metropolitan Junior Lions shared Freddie's luck. He selected two winners and seldom named a dog that finished farther back than third. . . . Some of the track experts believe Traffic Mistake, the unbeaten dog who holds the track record of 18.4 for the 3-16 of a mile, can defeat Road Side, the new dog from San Bernardino that set a record of 30.6 in the 540-yard futurity yesterday. Traffic Mistake was unable to race because of a foot injury. . . . Those greyhounds travel better than 35 miles per hour.

California Crew Favored in Poughkeepsie Regatta

SEVEN BOATS WILL TAKE TO WATER

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Monday, June 17. (AP)—Once more most of the great college crews are gathered on the Hudson for the time-honored Poughkeepsie regatta tomorrow, and once more it's another big eight of Little Ky Ebright, California's Golden Bears, against the smallest field in more than a decade.

Seven boatloads will take to the water at 6 p. m., eastern standard time, amid the same carnival surroundings, before the same gay crowds that have been thronging this little city on the Hudson once a year for 37 of these famous gatherings. Although every varsity but Columbia thinks it can win, the old rivermen shake their heads.

Predict Bear Victory

They see again the Bears, stroked by curly-headed Gene Berkenkamp, sliding down the river in the dusk, outlasting the field with that short, devastating stroke of theirs, just as they did last year and in 1932. California hasn't been beaten in the varsity since an astonishing navy eight pulled a Jimmy Braddock in 1931 and won one for the east. There was no regatta in 1933 because of economic stringencies.

If there's to be another upset of that kind this year, it is Buck Walsh's navy eight, stroked by burly Joe Hood, that draws the eyes of the experts. A big, smooth pulling crew, not laying back as far as most sailor fleets in the past, Navy's varsity lost out in the eastern spring season only to Pennsylvania, fastest of the crews in this region up to two miles. It has lots of power and stamina, which the experts fear will be wanting in the best Pennsylvania crew in years when the bulldog test comes in the drive through the last of four miles.

Quakers Show Promise

Rusty Callow is high on his Quakers, though, and he says his stroke, Lloyd Saxton, is the best he ever coached, so keen and eager are these Penn youngsters to lift themselves back into the Poughkeepsie spotlight that they unracked their boat against orders, while Callow was in town yesterday, and took a paddle on their own.

Al Ulbrickson's Washington Huskies, conquerors of California by a few feet in a Pacific coast regatta in April, haven't quite lived up to that promise. The sophomore boatload that was the varsity then has given way to a combination boat of seniors, juniors and sophomores, with the sophomore John York stroking the big eight.

OWENS AIMS AT COLLEGE OVAL MEET

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN

LOS ANGELES, Monday, June 17. (AP)—Disappointed over his inability to break any world's records on the fast Olympic games track here Saturday, Jesse Owens settled down to a final bit of serious training here today for the National Collegiate championship at Berkeley Saturday.

Coach Larry Snyder of the Ohio State squad expects to keep his team here until Wednesday, working his 13 men daily if the excellent weather holds out.

Although Owens won his four events against Southern California with something to spare, the smooth-running Negro expressed keen disappointment that he could not give a handful of world's records a fine trouncing before the 40,000 spectators.

Beats Norman Paul

He won the hundred from George Boone in 9.7 seconds; took two leaps and defeated Al Olson, national champion, in the board jump wth a mark of 25 feet, 5¼ inches; showed his heels to Foy Draper, I. C. 4-A. title holder in the 220-yard dash, coming within a tenth of a second of the world's record as the timers clocked him in 20.7 seconds, and then beat Norman Paul, joint world's record holder of the low hurdles, skimming over the 220-yard barriers in 23.1 seconds.

"Jesse was too anxious to show what he could do," said Coach Snyder. "He was trying too hard. He appeared to me to be slightly tied up, a result of his determination to give the present marks a fine working over. I'm going to give him a lot of work on starts this week."

COUNTY BALL NINES PLAY

Co-leaders of the Orange County Night Ball chase, Fullerton and Brea perform tonight in the first of six games winding up the first half of their 1935 softball schedule.

James Roberts' Fullerton contingent faces Chet Congdon's Missionaries at San Juan Capistrano, and Brea's Drillers, smarting under that 3-0 upset from Huntington Beach, tangle with Placentia's in-and-out team at Brea.

Huntington Beach treks to Irvine, Garden Grove to Olive.

Three entertaining pitching duels are in prospect: Ray Stout or Al Collman of Fullerton vs. Reginald Nieblas of Capistrano, Rudy Montgomery of Brea vs. Bob Jones of Placentia, and Urban Peltzer of Huntington Beach vs. Ray Hodgson of Irvine. Peltzer struck out 20 of Brea's hard-hitters last week, and prior to that established a league record by whiffing 21 members of the San Juan Capistrano outfit.

The statistics:

COUNTY NIGHT BALL LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Brea	7	1	.875
Fullerton	7	1	.875

Charley Roemer, the football tackle, is reported seriously thinking about passing up football with the Dons next fall, now that he has been elected Associated Student president. But he won't, his friends say.

ANGELS ANNEX 1ST HALF OF COAST RACE

By the Associated Press

Those Angels went and did it again!

Just as they walked off with both halves of last year's Pacific Coast baseball league race, Jack Lelivelt's Los Angeles horsehiders assured themselves of additional income this season by winning the 1935 first half, and today they were en route to Portland to commence the second part of the schedule and attempt to complete the previous slam.

Decision of the coast league directors to play a split season officially came yesterday from the office of President H. L. Baggerly. It had been known for several days, as had the fact that the club owners had abolished the split-week idea in favor of the old seven-games-a-week program. Baggerly's announcement revealed a unanimous opinion.

The Angels won first-half honors by a five-and-one-half-game margin over San Francisco and Oakland, who finished in a dead heat for second by virtue of "Lefty" O'Doul's Seals winning four straight over the Acorns.

Portland also made it hard on an upper division club, measuring Hollywood twice, 8 to 4 and 5 to 4. The Seals' victories over Oakland were by 5 to 4 and 14 to 1. The tail-end Missions wound up by pasting Seattle twice, 7 to 0 and 18 to 4, two contests which buoyed up the spirits of Manager "Gabby" Street.

COLTON NINE LEADS INLAND DIVISION

Numbering Covina among its latest victims, 2-0, Colton has increased its lead in the American Night Ball league by two full games with a percentage of .800. Arlington, shutting out San Bernardino 5-0, now holds second place with .600.

The standings:

AMERICAN NIGHTBALL LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Colton	8	2	.800
Arlington	6	4	.600
Riverside	5	4	.555
San Bernardino	5	5	.500

Sports Writer Finds Jimmy Braddock Just Big Hearted Irishman

(This is the first of four articles on the up, down, and up again career of Jimmy Braddock, new heavyweight champion of the world.)

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Monday, June 17. (AP)—What kind of fellow really is this James J. Braddock, messenger boy, printer's devil, longshoreman, prize fighter, now heavyweight champion of the world?

Take a cross-section of all the big, even-tempered, slow-spoken, honest, faithful family men who know, that's one picture of the 29-year-old Irishman who dazed the fistic world by whipping Max Baer in Madison Square Garden's bowl on Long Island.

Think of someone you know, someone with a big wide open face, clear eyes, not particularly smart but a bulldog in his devotion to his wife and three youngsters, always having a tough time making a go of it, but never quitting and too proud to ask favors he can't repay. That's another picture of him.

My favorite picture of him outside of a prize ring came in the lush days of 1929, when everybody had money and Madison Square Garden's 600 millionaires, headed by Bill Carey, were trying to spend as much as possible of it by promoting a monster field day for the sporting people in conjunction with Jack Sharkey's heavyweight tussle with Bill Stribling in Miami.

Braddock, lean and quiet, weighing only 170 pounds, was down there with his manager, little but loud Joe Gould. They had lots of money then, Braddock some $80,000 in stocks and interests in taxi companies in New Jersey. Braddock was about to fight Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight championship of the world. He was one of pugilism's big shots.

Date for Golf

Gould and I had a date to play golf one morning. Braddock came along to watch. There was only one caddy available. Jimmy never hesitated.

"I'll lug your sticks," he said.

With never a thought that there was anything unusual in the picture the prize fighter ploughed the 18 holes behind the writer, sweating around in the underbrush looking for lost balls, toting the heavy bag. He grinned but never said a word until Gould, at the 19th, reluctantly settled for his losses.

"If Joe don't give up golf I'll have to learn to fight twice a night," he suggested.

The ten-year friendship of the fighter and manager nearly ended right there.

EWERT AND BEACH SURVIVE IN COUNTRY CLUB GOLF TOURNEY

Dark-haired Dick Ewert, club champion, and J. W. Beach, President's cup king, were among the survivors of the Santa Ana Country club's annual high-low golf tourney, second-round matches for which were conducted over the week-end.

The Santa Ana combination of jeweler and florist trimmed C. V. Davis and J. E. Liebig, 2 and 1, to advance into the third round.

R. O. Winkler, playing with partner A. W. Griffith, sank a 40-foot putt on the nineteenth hole to defeat H. B. Rapp and M. E. Johnson, who were four down and five to go, and even on the 18th.

Among the week-end losers were G. A. "Tex" Oliver, University of Arizona coach, and R. E. Gray, eliminated by H. A. Gardner and H. L. Miller, 2 and 1.

Ed Holmes and Roy Langley captured Saturday's best ball sweepstakes with a card of 74-9-65. C. P. Patton and J. K. McDonald were second with 75-9-66. B. W. McClure and L. D. Coffing shot a 76-9-67 and H. S. Wright and A. W. Robinson a 73-6-67.

Wyatt today declared England's first innings in the initial test match with South Africa at 384 runs for seven wickets. South Africas' batsmen started in great style and at the lunch adjournment had scored 98 runs for one wicket.

PERRY PITCHES TWO-HIT BALL

FULLERTON, Monday, June 17. Stopping the Cuccio Winery sluggers with a two-hit pitching performance, Clifford Perry, pride of Fayetteville, hurled Fullerton to a 1-to-0 victory here yesterday.

Luke Senseri, slender Italian gunner, put up a stiff argument all the way, but was up against too much opposition. His five-hit throwing wasn't good enough to stop Francis Lemon's nine.

Fullerton scored in the fifth when Lester Evans, 17-year-old high school youngster, beat out an infield drive for a hit, and stole second.

Roe White, Arkansas schoolboy, drove out a double to right center to produce the lone tally.

KORALS HELP S.A. WIN

On timely hits by the two Koral brothers—Joe and "Bomo"—Santa Anita's top-ranking baseball club knocked over the league-leading Thornton nine of Long Beach by the impressive score of 5-1 here yesterday.

Shortstop Joe Koral, who enjoyed a perfect day with four hits in four trials, doubled in the eighth. Francis Conrad was safe on a fielder's choice, and "Bomo" Koral, popular catcher of the Santa Ana's Stars of the National softball league, whaled a triple deep into the outfield to score both. "Bomo" came home on Miller's fly to center.

DOG INJURED; ROAD SIDE SETS NEW MARK AT CANINE TRACK

Radio Mike, owned by Al Warren of Orange county, was injured in a sensational spill; and Road Side, owned by H. Bolen of San Bernardino, set a new track record of 30.6 seconds in the 540-yard futurity to furnish the thrills of the Orange County Kennel club's greyhound races at the old county fair grounds yesterday.

One of those dogs that like to hug the rail, Radio Mike was running fourth in the seventh race for 330 yards, and in attempting to "cut in" near the pole position on the northwest turn, he smashed into the iron bar on the inside rail, and was knocked unconscious. An early report said the dog was dead after breaking its neck, but it was found to be suffering only from a severe shake-up, and was recovering within an hour.

Traffic Mistake, holder of the track record of 18.4 seconds for the 330 yards, was unable to race Road Side of San Bernardino in the advertised match race because of a foot injury received the preceding Sunday. Suspicious Virginia, another J. Conzoneri entry, was substituted, but the husky Road Side won as it pleased in setting a new record of 30.6 secs. in the futurity. Road Side was better than six lengths ahead at the finish.

Peewee and Tippy, a pair of beautiful Chihuahua dogs, appeared in a special race winding up the program. The petite Tippy failed to run, Peewee chasing the mechanical rabbit all by himself.

The results:

First race (futurity, 540 yards)—Won by Golden Honor, owner J. Conzoneri; Conjoro H. S. second, Alvin S. third. Time, 31 secs. flat.

Second race (futurity, 540 yards)—Won by Blue Streak, owner Dennis Kennels; Midnight Play second, Cal Coon third. Time, 31.6 secs.

Third race (futurity, 540 yards)—Won by Fire Brand, owner J. Harold; Dashing Officer second, Head Liner third. Time, 31 secs. flat.

Fourth race (futurity, 540 yards)—Won by Waho, owner Bennett Kennels; Tilling second, Hazard Chief third. Time, 30.8 secs.

Fifth race (330 yards)—Won by Brass Knuckles, owner Bennett Kennels; Wild Cloud second, Clipper third. Time, 19.6 secs.

Sixth race (330 yards)—Won by George's Officer, owner Abe Coto; Spicy Patrol second, Hazardous Vain third. Time, 19.8 secs.

Seventh race (330 yards)—Won by Golden Maid, owner Abe Coto; Light Out second, Shadow Man third. Time, 20 secs. flat.

Eighth race (futurity, 540 yards)—Won by California Queen, owner F. Russo, Great Mitt second, Tap Dancer third. Time, 31.2 secs.

Ninth race (330 yards)—Won by Ben Edgeway, owner A. Warren; Daniel second, Lady Midge third. Time, 19.8 secs.

Match race (futurity, 540 yards)—Road Side, owner H. Bolen of San Bernardino, defeated Suspicious Virginia, J. Conzoneri stables, by six lengths in 30.6 secs. (New track record).

Tenth race (330 yards)—Won by Midnight Traffic, owner B. Jones; Mayor Girl second, Ben Andy third. Time, 20.2 secs.

EX-CHAMP TO MEET SZABO TONIGHT

Ernie Dusek Billed to Face Al Tadrof in Semi-Windup Fray

With Jim Browning, former world's heavyweight champion matman — famed as the inventor of the 'turnover scissors' and the conqueror of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, scheduled to meet Sandor Szabo—the Hungarian Adonis — in the three fall main event—Sam Sampson holds his second all-star heavyweight wrestling card at 8:30 in the Orange County Athletic club on the 101 Highway tonight.

The Browning-Szabo battle offers fans more than did the Dean-Fraley bout that drew a turn-away crowd. Browning has long been considered one of the leading scientific performers in the game and Szabo is fast becoming recognized as a potential champion. Dean is a freak. Fraley a rough, tough unorthodox grappler.

Pair Met in N. Y.

A little more than a year ago Browning first met Szabo and it was one of the classics of the New York wrestling season. More than 10,000 fans paid $18,000 to see Browning subdue the courageous Hungarian. The bout, however, was a one-fall affair. Tonight they clash over the three-fall route with Szabo a vastly improved youth and now has a counter hold for Browning's "turnover scissors."

More scientific wrestling and mat drama should be packed in the scheduled one-hour match between the former champion and the youthful Szabo than all the rest of the card combined.

Szabo made a tremendous hit with fans in his sensational win over the Italian badman, Tony Felice, last week.

Dusek Meets Tafrof

About the wildest and most dangerous rougher on the Pacific Coast at present — Ernie Dusek, wildest of the four wrestling Dusek brothers, steps on the mat in the secondary feature against Al Tadrof. The latter is subbing for Paul Jones, veteran Texan.

Dusek has been making quite a name for himself in this section with his aggressive style and willingness to meet all opposition. He came within an ace of beating Man Mountain Dean last week in the international tourney in Los Angeles.

Rough-riding Ev Kibbons, Oklahoma cowboy, will be up against a flying tackle performer in Casey Columbo in the special event while the bad Italian, Tony Felice, meets Mexican Luis Mayo in the opener.

TEACHINGS ON 'SIN' PROVIDE PULPIT TOPIC

Outlining the teachings of Christ on "Sin," the Rev. Dr. Walter Scott Buchanan addressed the first evening union service of downtown churches held last night in the First Congregational church.

"It was sin that committed the first murder, set in motion the first war, committed the first robbery, and repealed the Eighteenth amendment," Dr. Buchanan said.

Satan Father of Sin

That Satan is the father of Sin, the minister declared was the teaching of Jesus. In His catalogue of sins, Christ included blasphemy, skepticism, anger, adultery, divorce, stealing, deceit, fraud, covetousness, materialism, and worldliness, the minister continued.

"'You have heard that it was said, thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy, but I say unto you, love your enemies and pray for them that persecute you'," Dr. Buchanan quoted from Christ's teachings.

Christ proffered the Holy Spirit, the minister said, as a guide and leader to salvation and truth.

Neglect Most Sinful

More destructive than other sins, however, the minister declared, Christ called the sin of neglect.

"Not only will it steal our happiness," Dr. Buchanan said, "but our hope of eternal life as well."

Concluding the address, he quoted: "'Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord has set over his household, to give them their food in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing'."

MOTHERS HONOR GRADUATING SONS

GARDEN GROVE, Monday, June 17.—Don Powers and Ray Devine, members of the graduating class of the Garden Grove High school, were honored by their mothers at the Powers home following the commencement exercises Friday.

Following supper, members of the party were joined by other young people for a trip to Los Angeles.

Members of the party were the Misses Billy McConnell, Ferne Schnitger, Margaret Phillips, and Lois Mark, and Leonard Schauer, Ansel Lewis, Keith Bickmore, Ray Devine and Don Powers.

PARENTS HONOR BRIDE-TO-BE

ORANGE, Monday, June 17.—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lowry entertained with a trousseau tea Sunday afternoon honoring their daughter, Miss Mary Katherine Lowry, who on June 22 will become the bride of Ed Fields, Los Angeles. About 80 guests were present.

Mrs. E. T. Battey, Santa Ana, poured; Miss Rowena Newcom, Santa Ana, played several violin Lowry; Miss Elizabeth Lowry sang solos, accompanied by Mrs. Robert three solos; and piano music was furnished by the Miss Cora Alice and Miriam Powell.

SEEK FLAG THIEF

NEWPORT BEACH, Monday, June 17.—Police officials are on the lookout for a "patriotic fiend" who pulled down all the flags flying here after sundown Friday, Flag day. Summoned by a deluge of telephone calls, officers tried to intercept the would-be Uncle Sam who wasn't content with lowering the flags, but made way with them.

The Merry-Go-Round

sion, has expended more than $500,000 in the nine months of its existence. At present it is running bills of about $50,000 a month. Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the board, draws a salary of $11,500. . . . Ohio's Representative Charles Truax, who boasts of having sold hogs in every state in the union, has introduced a bill "to preserve and encourage a declining national institution popularly known as the circus." . . . Mrs. Homer T. Cummings, vivacious wife of the attorney general, is the latest Washington notable to receive an honorary Kentucky commission. Governor Laffoon has made her an admiral on his staff.

The report is current in business circles that the National Association of Manufacturers' expenditures of $250,000 to defeat the Wagner labor disputes bill is causing considerable muttering among the members. The measure passed the senate after only a few hours' debate and without the chamber even troubling to take a record vote. . . . New Mexico's Representative John J. Dempsey is white haired, florid complexioned and hefty in build, but he has youthful ideas when it comes to dress. His latest is an all-blue ensemble—a powder-blue sports suit, light blue shirt and collar with tie and socks to match. . . . The placing of a $1,250,000 order by the Soviets with the Alco company, a subsidiary of the American Locomotive company, for oil refining machinery has revived hopes among important business interests for an early resumption of trade negotiations between the governments of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. The Alco order is the second large U. S. purchase by the Soviets this year. Several months ago they bought $3,500,000 worth of rolling mill equipment from the United Engineering company of Pittsburgh.

ADJOURNMENT POOL

CONTRIBUTING a dollar apiece, official reporters of the senate have made a pool on the adjournment date of Congress. With other subscriptions, the fund has reached the total of 17 dollars. Guesses range from July 1 to August 3. . . . Because no senator could be found willing to move to the seat of the late Bronson Cutting, it will be uprooted from the middle of the republican bloc and transplanted to the democratic side. This is supposed to be done before next Wednesday, thirtieth birthday of Rusn Holt, who may be seated on that day. . . . U. S. Destroyer DD383, last week dubbed the "Warrington," got its name at the instance of a man who makes a hobby of proposing names for navy craft. He is W. H. Feldhus, Lehigh university history professor, and he dug up the name of an American naval hero named Warrington who commanded the "Peacock" in Tripoli in 1805. . . . Though the name of Wyoming's Senator O'Mahoney is properly pronounced O'May-eny, with the accent on the "May," capitol officials prefer the Irish version with the accent on the "hone." It is more easily understood. . . . Successful paintings done by artists on relief can be seen in public buildings all over the country. Little is said, however, about the flops. They are disposed of by shipping to the Procurement Division of the Treasury, to be stored for a time, then destroyed.

BIG DAY

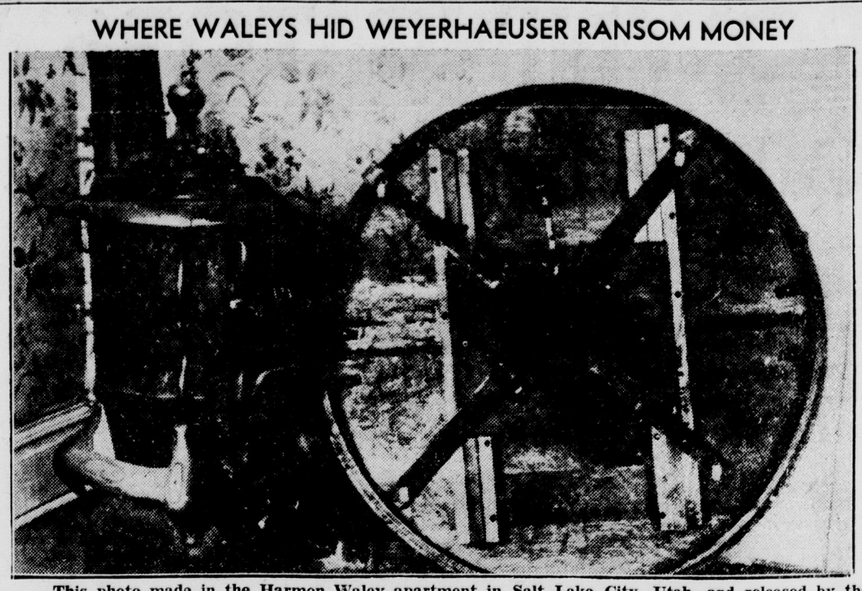

TODAY is a big one for 330,000 youths and war veterans. That number will be added to the CCC during the course of the next 10 weeks—at the rate of 33,000 a week. The "enrollees," as they are called, will be drawn from unemployed on relief rolls. . . . Encountering jovial Justice Harlan Stone in a capitol corridor, shortly after the supreme court held its last meeting in the small chamber it has occupied for more than 75 years, Missouri's Senator Bennett Clark, a strong anti-NRAer, remarked slyly: "We are sorry to see you move away, Mr. Justice, just when we were getting fond of you." . . . The resolutions adopted by the executive committee of the A. F. of L., at its meeting in Washington last week, were most conciliatory toward the President. But behind closed doors, some of the labor moguls were distinctly hostile. At one of the sessions the President was caustically criticized for not attempting to set up a new NRA. . . . Representative Edwin M. Schaefer, who has come under sharp fire in inner Administration circles for voting against the TVA amendments, has rushed to the defense of his fellow-Illinoian and democrat, Senator Dieterich. The latter fell into similar ill grace because of his warring on the President's holding corporation bill. Over the name of his secretary, Melvin Price, Schaefer is sending prepared stories to newspapers in his district upholding the stand taken by his senatorial colleague.

SLEEPING HORSES

MICHIGAN'S Earl C. Michener saw a squirrel crossing the Capitol drive the other day in the path of an approaching car, made a clucking sound and the squirrel turned back. "You must wait for the red light," the Congressman cautioned. . . . The Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin warning farmers to watch for sleeping sickness among horses this summer. . . . Rarely does a member of the minority party preside pro tem in the Senate, as Delaware's Senator Townsend did the other day. Democrats felt no danger in it, for Townsend's colleague, Senator Hastings, was speaking. . . . A cause of concern to Harry Hopkins and his relief staff is the problem of measuring the performance of artists and musicians under the new Works-Relief program. They will be expected to do a full eight-hour day, and any departures, to allow for artistic temperament, are not expected to go down well with Comptroller General McCarl. The question remains unsolved as to whether an artist's canvas or a musician's rehearsal can be evaluated at the end of the day to determine whether or not they have done their stint. . . . The vote on the Utility Holding Corporation bill produced strange bedfellows this week. Huey Long and Joe Robinson were in agreement for the first time this session. (Copyright 1935)

PEST CONTROL, GROVE OPERATION METHODS TOLD CITRUS MEN

INSTITUTE FOR GROWERS IS CONCLUDED

Larger Infestations to Call for Increased Expenditures

Seven hundred citrus growers from throughout the Southland had returned to their homes today to put into practice methods of grove operation and pest control recommended at the afternoon session of the citrus growers' institute in the Frances Willard school here Saturday.

Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs, Farm Advisor Harold Wahlberg and A. M. Boyce, entomologist at the citrus experiment station, Riverside, were the speakers, while W. R. Schoonover, citrus specialist for the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, presided.

Larger than usual infestations of pests will necessitate larger outlays for control this year, Mr. Tubbs said.

Recommendations

His recommendations for treatment included properly timed fumigation for black, red and purple scale; a summer oil spray and later a fumigation for heavy infestations of red and purple scale; use of hot gas for winter fumigation; an oil spray for red spider, and poison bran for brown snails.

Mr. Boyce told of research work on red spider control, pointing out that the real name of the pest is red mite. He agreed that oil spray so far has proved the best means of control. He said hundreds of materials have been tested.

Mr. Wahlberg told the growers that they and the propagators or nurserymen are in a position to revolutionize scaly bark treatment by means of selecting disease resistant bud stock. Such practice, he said, has shown encouraging results.

Tells Production Cost

He also reported on cost of production studies for lemons, covering a 10-year period in Orange county. He advised timing of irrigation according to actual soil needs rather than by the calendar. Simple nitrogenous and bulky organic fertilizers are gaining in favor, he said the studies showed. Cultivation is far less frequent, and less deep, with better results. Pruning costs have declined 50 per cent, tests showing that far greater production has resulted from conservative thinning instead of the former drastic cutting.

The institute was under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension Service and the citrus department of the California Farm Bureau Federation. Harold Lang of Fullerton was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

UNIFIED MORNING SERVICE PLAN WINS APPROVAL

Official acceptance of the unified morning service plan for the First Christian church, effective July 1, was made at the morning service of the congregation yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Walter Scott Buchanan announced today.

The vote followed an open forum on the subject, held Friday night in the Educational building, at which endorsement was given to the project.

This is the second action to be taken on the matter by Santa Ana churches, the First Methodist church having inaugurated the plan June 8.

ETHIOPIA: WAR THREAT LOOMS for BLACK EMPIRE

5. THE ARMY'S ONE CANNON

While across Ethiopia's borders Italy concentrates such modern warfare detachments as flame throwers, the black empire's army goes busily about its business of "training for any eventuality." European instructions say that in two years the Ethiopian forces have approched the perfection of European soldiers and what is lacking in training is made up for in enthusiasm. Here is seen one of the "heavy" artillery soldiers finding the range with the "Black Empire's" only large cannon.

DO YOU KNOW SPEED LAWS?

Auto Club Counsel Explains

The following explanation of the laws regarding automobile speed limits was prepared as a result of a great number of queries received on the present status of the rule as it affects motorists. Every automobile operator should be informed on this most important subject.—Editor.

By IVAN KELSO
General Counsel Automobile Club of Southern California

What is the speed limit in California? This is a question asked by motorists.

In order to answer it satisfactorily, it is necessary first to explain the three principal types of speed regulations and briefly review the history of the speed enactments of our own legislature.

The three principal types of speed regulations in the United States are (a) an arbitrary limit—that is, a stated speed beyond which it is never lawful to drive; (b) no stated speed limit at all, only a "careful driving" rule; (c) a stated lawful limit, speed beyond which is prima facie unlawful—that is, unlawful on the face of it, or at first glance, or at first consideration.

Few Learn Law

Previous to 1923, California had speed regulations of the type marked (a). Since 1923 California has had speed regulations of the type marked (c), but in all the years since that time comparatively few persons have taken the trouble really to learn the California rule.

Obviously there is a difference between a fixed or arbitrary speed limit and the so-called "prima facie rule," and this difference is that, whereas it is always unlawful to exceed an arbitrary speed limit, it is not necessarily unlawful to exceed the stated limit under the "prima facie" rule.

When, then, may one exceed this stated limit? I shall answer this question immediately, but please do not stop reading at the end of the next sentence; continue on to the end if you wish to know the whole story. The answer is, whenever by so doing, you do not "endanger the safety of persons or property," and the speed in excess of the stated limits is "reasonable and prudent, having due regard for the traffic on and the surface and width of the highway."

"Prima Facie" Rule

The law presumes that speed in excess of the stated limit does endanger the safety of persons or property and is unreasonable and imprudent considering the traffic on and the surface and width of the highway. This is where the "prima facie" rule comes into play. It is the burden of the defendant to prove such excess speed did not endanger the safety of persons or property, and was not unreasonable or imprudent considering the tarffic on or the surface or width of the highway. Unless he can do this he may be convicted, not of speeding, but of one of the acts mentioned above.

Thus the prima facie rule means that you may exceed the stated limits of speed and commit no offense, provided you can prove you did not (a) endanger the safety of persons or property and (b) that your speed was reasonable and prudent considering the traffic on and the surface and width of the highway. Someone says "try and do it." Admittedly it has been an almost impossible task to date, but this is not the fault of the law, but only of those judges who have failed to apply it. Now that one of our appellate courts has explained the true meaning of the prima facie rule we have a right to expect our trial courts to understand it and be controlled by it. Of course, if a defendant does not want to assume this burden of proof, he does not have to, and can avoid doing so by always driving at or below the stated lawful speed.

OPEN SUMMER SESSIONS IN CITY TODAY

With an enrollment of 49 students and an expected roster of more than 100 before registration closes, summer school sessions for high school and junior college credit opened this morning at College hall, Tenth and Main streets.

"Registration will be continued through tomorrow," H. O. Russell, dean of the summer session, said today.

Credits earned during the summer term will be accepted at Santa Ana High school and Santa Ana Junior college, and may be transferred to any high school, college or university. College students may earn as many as six units, while prep school students may earn one.

"The summer session offers an opportunity to many students to make up deficiencies and sometimes saves a whole year of college or high school work," Dean Russell said today.

The classes are offered daily except Saturday and Sunday, and will be continued until July 26.

Twenty-four courses are being offered in the jaysee instruction and 16 in the high school. Following are teachers assisting Dean Russell: Mrs. Jennie Tessmann, George B. Holmes, Miss Etta M. Conkle, Mrs. Robert Northcross, L. L. Beeman, Miss Lella Watson, Edward M. Nealley, Miss Mary Swass, Miss Josephine Arnold, and H. W. Goodwin.

NO ANTI-SNAIL DRIVE HERE

Orange county probably will not follow the example of Los Angeles county in turning the heat on white snails, a plant pest. The reason is that Orange county's infestation of snails is under control. A few years ago there were millions of them in about seven different locations; but the heat was turned on, poisoned bran was spread, and today they are practically gone except in one grove near Santa Ana.

In southwest San Pedro, war is being waged with fire against the pests, which often cluster as thick as grapes on plants, eating the foliage. Workers throw flames at the snails with torches.

The pests first appeared here in an alfalfa patch near Seal Beach in 1932. Later they were discovered in six other spots including orange groves. They were burned out at Seal Beach and poisoned in other areas.

Eradication work has been going on under the state department of agriculture. Last week five workers discovered only eight snails in Orange county, according to a report sent to D. B. Mackie of the state department, by Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs. The workers found these snails after eight and one-half man hours of work.

97 NEEDED FOR CCC QUOTA

Orange county needs 97 more applicants for membership in the March Field camp of the Citizens Conservation corps, according to Terrance Halloran, director of the State Emergency Relief organization for this county. So far only 15 men have been sent to March Field from here, he said, while the quota is 112.

Unless more men are secured, Orange county's quota must be relinquished to some other county, Mr. Halloran said. Applicants must be certified by the SERA here as to their need, but Mr. Halloran urged all those interested to apply, because they might be eligible without realizing it. June 27 is the last date on which applications can be filed, he said.

200 MANUSCRIPTS AT 12!

Jack Forcey Likes To Write

"Vacation means pecking away at my typewriter," says Jack Forcey, 12-year-old student at Julia Lathrop Junior High school, famous for his essays and stories.

Some boys are glad school's out, because now they can go swimming. Others have shelved books in favor of baseball or "bike" rides. Jack Forcey, a freckle-nosed, sturdy chap of 12, from Julia Lathrop Junior High school, wishes he didn't have to ever go back to school so that he would have more time to write essays and stories.

During Jack's two years of writing, he's completed more than 200 manuscripts on miscellaneous subjects. A prolific vocabulary and a fund of historical facts, colored by a bright imagination, make his yarns good reading.

"I like to write about geography and pirates mostly," Jack said. "The most fun is writing mystery stories but I'm afraid I'm not very good yet, because my sister, Alice O. can always guess the answer." He was pensive over the suggestion that perhaps his sister's training as a law secretary gave her an advantage.

Easy Style

Ease of diction marks his stories. An excerpt from one of his stories follows:

"In the shipyards of Southampton, England, one of the greatest, most luxurious, and ultra modern ocean liners was constructed and launched. Indeed she was a wonder ship—and she was solemnly christened the R. M. S. 'Titanic'—an opulent British trans-Atlantic liner."

"Well, yes, I guess I do know a good many words," Jack admitted. "They call me the 'walking dictionary' at school," grinned Jack. "I learn most of them from listening to speeches over the radio, and then I borrow my brother's dictionary. It was Robert's high school graduation present, but I'm afraid I use it most of the time."

Compiles Hobbies

Among Jack's essays is a compilation of hobbies of more than 300 persons, some current and others historical.

When asked if he intended to write as a career, Jack dubiously stated, "Well, I know that it isn't very profitable."

He particularly wants to see Pompeii and would like to complete his tour of California missions.

Son of Mr and Mrs. L. M. Forcey, Jack has a group of brothers and sisters that also are talented. One sister, Frances, does art work in a cartoon studio of Hollywood. His brother Robert was editor of the Santa Ana High school annual this year. Another sister, Alice O., is a law secretary, with the rest of the family following varied interests.

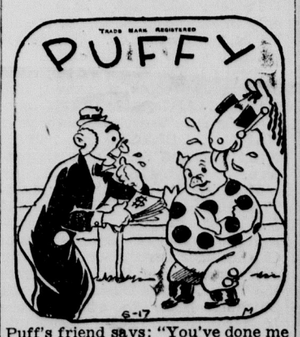

FRANK MILLER RITES TODAY

RIVERSIDE, Monday, June 17. (AP)—Funeral services were to be held today for Frank A. Miller, founder and owner of the Mission Inn at Riverside, who died Saturday. The services were to be private and were to be held in the afternoon in the Chapel of St. Francis of Assisi.

Three clerics, who were closely associated with Mr. Miller in cultural and religious matters in Riverside, were to officiate at the service. They are Rev. Eza J. Egly, Rev. Francis Ellis and Rev. Theodore C. Hunt, retired.

Mr. Miller, born in Wisconsin, came to Riverside with his parents in 1873. He founded the Mission Inn about ten years later, an institution which has grown into a cultural and artistic center visited by thousands from all over the world.

Mr. Miller also improved Mt. Rubidoux, where sunrise services are conducted each Easter, attracting throngs from afar. He was sponsor of the Institute of International Relations which meets in the hotel each December.

Puff's friend says: "You've done me a very good turn,
I'd like to reward you—I've money to burn.'
"All right," Puffy smiles, "if you like, you can burn it.
But give it to me, and I'll simply return it."

MASONS ARE TO PICNIC FRIDAY

When the clock strikes 2 Friday afternoon, June 21, that will be the signal for more than 200 Masons and their families from lodge No. 241, to begin festivities at their gala annual picnic in Irvine park.

A ball game for men and boys is set as the first event. Races will be scheduled and a series of games for women as well as men has been planned. Prizes will be awarded in all events.

A barbecue dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, and dancing in the pavilion is on the evening program.

Reservations must be made for tickets with officers, Master Sidney J. Babcock, or at the Masonic temple, by Wednesday evening. Members have been asked to attend with their families to continue the annual affair as one of the highlights of the lodge program.

Carl Mock will be master of ceremonies and supervise the games.

Table service and suppers will be furnished on reservation.

WOMEN SELECT DELEGATES

To attend the state executive board meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union, a large delegation of Orange county members will leave tomorrow morning for a two-day conference at San Diego, previous to W. C. T. U. day at the California Pacific International exposition on Thursday.

Mrs. T. L. Warren, state recording secretary, and Miss Emily Cox, department director, will attend from Santa Ana. Mrs. C. E. Utt of Tustin, Mrs. Pearl Kendall Hess, Minnie Nezille and Mrs. Clara Jones of Orange, all department directors, will also be present.

Just returned from six weeks at the state legislature, Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, state president, of Los Angeles, is expected to bring matters of current interest to the attention of the group. Headquarters for the conference will be the Home Center for Soldiers and Sailors, at 824 Twelfth street, San Diego.

CALLES LEAVES MEXICO CITY POLITICS

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

MEXICO, D. F., Monday, June 17.—General Plutarco Elias Calles, one-time strong man of Mexico, withdrew from the political scene today, liquidating a five days' crisis.

The former president, who came into open conflict with President Lazaro Cardenas over economic policies, announced he would depart for the north Tuesday, "leaving all responsibility for public affairs to those who have it in their hands."

The young president, in sole power after forcing the resignations of his ministers, drove ahead with his drafting of a new government to be named tonight.

Disorders Unlikely

Competent observers believed that any possibility of armed disorders passed with the withdrawal of Calles, and that no further incidents would disturb the annual International Rotary convention, which opened today.

It was understood, however, that anti-government groups, in addition to Catholics, who paraded 15,000 strong yesterday, planned to take advantage of the presence of the Rotarians to hold demonstrations.

"I came here in answer to a call I received and to end a situation which might be badly interpreted," Calles said. "I am departing, leaving all responsibility for public affairs to those who have it in their hands."

Rotarians Arriving

President Cardenas' reply, opposing Calles' views, precipitated the political crisis and the resignations of the cabinet ministers.

Fifteen hundred delegates to the Rotary convention, delayed more than 30 hours by washouts in north Monterey, were scheduled to arrive late today, their trains having been re-routed.

Stir until it begins to stiffen, add twelve quarts peeled and diced apples, six quarts chopped white celery, three quarts chopped walnut meats, two quarts chopped pimentos and one quart chopped sweet green peppers.

Pour into oblong enameled baking pans, set in cool place until firm. Cut in squares and serve on leaves of lettuce. Thirty-six heads of lettuce serves this salad to 300. Use boiled salad dressing or lemon mayonnaise. Will serve three hundred.

MRS. JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS

If the dapper Senator James Hamilton Lewis wanted to, he could have his fortune told every day—and by his own wife . . . Palm reading is only one of the many accomplishments of the gracious spouse of the senior senator from Illinois . . . It has won her the nickname of "Gypsy." . . . During the world war on the battlefields of France she nursed wounded soldiers. . . . She has been decorated three times by the French government for her work, the most recent being last year when the cross of the Legion of Honor was conferred upon her.

She also is one of the few American women to be presented twice at the court of St. James—in 1923 and in 1934. . . . As Rose Lawton Douglas she was born in Scriven county, Ga., the daughter of George Baskerville Douglas. . . . She was educated in France and Switzerland and for a while was a newspaper correspondent. . . . In Chicago Mrs. Lewis served as trustee of the recent world's fair. . . . In Washington she leads the life of a busy hostess in the capital's social whirl, but is always "at home" to visiting delegations from Illinois.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

Pick and Pat—or, if you prefer, Molasses 'n' January, are a couple of lazy fellows. They might be, as the song lyric has it, sittin' in the sun, not getting anything done . . . nor carin'. At the microphone in CBS' Radio Playhouse, New York City, they stand stock still and swap fatuities according to an old southern custom. Their way is listless, their purpose aimless and they talk in a shuffle—a shuffle without benefit of a banjo and clapping hands. Pat wears a preposterous suit. A race track check which fits here and there but never quite. Topped with a brown derby, the costume as a whole suggests a gait which Pat could never achieve and survive.

PAT PADGETT
Molasses

Equally absurd is Pick's pattern. He wears a large cap of red plaid. His jacket is in the same spirit—red plaid. The trousers are a bright, solid blue. All dazzlingly exciting. Pick doesn't get excited. Neither does Pat.

In the wings they have their flurries. There they are Pick Malone and Pat Padgett, two hearty, lively Irishmen. A minute before broadcasting time and they're still fussing with burnt cork and and their black wigs.

PICK MALONE
January

Someone shouts "Pick!" the "Pat!" Down the stairs from their dressing rooms pell mell they come. Conductor Josef Bonime smoothes his long hair, holds his baton over the orchestra and Pick and Pat click their heels together, stand at attention watching the red light which flashes the signal they're on the air.

The orchestra fanfares, and very alert and quiet they await the moment when they must revert to type and make their entrance in a crawl. A couple of lazy fellows, Pick and Pat, for KHJ-CBS dialers at 7:30 o'clock.

Watch for this one: Tomorrow afternoon, George Bernard Shaw's voice will be brought from London to America by CBS for a KHJ release at 1 o'clock. There's no telling what the old boy will have to say to Americans, whom he addresses as "dear old boobs."

ENEMY'S KISS by Evelyn M. Winch

SYNOPSIS: Alison Rede goes to a lonely house in Sussex to meet her father. But her father is not there; instead she is frightened by a horrible, hairless man, and rescued by a second stranger, who is pleasant and gives his name as Guy Westurn. Guy insists that she lock the bedroom door behind her and rest, with his dog Gaffe to guard her, while he awaits downstairs for her father—or for the dawn.

Chapter Eight
THE INITIALS

Alison turned the key in the lock; there were no blankets on the bed, and she did not undress but took off her blouse and skirt, her shoes and stockings and piled all four of the pillows in their grey ticking under her head.

The room, small and square, was furnished in a strange, old-fashioned way, with heavy pieces of satinwood all to match, and an engraving of Queen Victoria's coronation occupying the place of honor over the mantelpiece.

Alison, used to the fresh, modern rooms at school or to her own luxurious room in London found it queer, as she settled down under the coat—as queer as the thought that she should be going to bed in a strange house, with a strange dog by her side and an unknown young man her sole company.

Queer and, in spite of her anxiety for her father, just a little thrilling. . . .

She had never had any adventure before in her life; her days had had an ordered smoothness, almost dullness, and even her traveling had been done in comfort, either with her father or someone to meet her and to see her off. She wondered what her father would say to it when he did come. And she thought of Guy Westurn with growing approval.

He was nice; she liked the way he spoke, the rather firm, deep voice—refreshing after a year abroad and the excitable tones of foreigners!

Alison, curling sleepily down under her thick coat, thought "I do like him. Guy Westurn, Guy's nice. He looks like that somehow. Not like Bob or Charles—not even like Philip or John—Westurn. I wonder how he spells it—e, r, n, or u, r, n."

She felt Gaffe's tail thump and put down a hand to pat him; the big dog wriggled ingratiatingly up, snuggling against her and sweeping a large red tongue across her hand. Blinking down at him, Alison noticed his collar and, in a spasm of curiosity, leaned over to read the brass tab.

"Gaffe"—then two initials and a telephone number.

Only the initials were G. L.

The man who had left her went slowly downstairs and through the empty house, listening intently, looking into every corner as he went. But there was no sound. He opened the drawing room, walked

HUEY'S SCHEME IS DEFEATED

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 17. (AP) — The Long "share the wealth" substitute for the administration social security bill was rejected today by the senate by a chorus of "noes" without even a record vote.

The substitute, offered by Senator Huey Long, would have provided old age pensions for all people over 60 who did not have an income of $500 a year or property worth $3000.

FIRE ON SATURDAY DESTROYS 2-STORY APARTMENT HOUSE

A fire at 7:30 p. m. Saturday destroyed a two-story frame apartment house at 423 East First street owned by Joseph L. Marshall. Fire Marshal Elmer Gates today estimated property loss from the blaze would total $2,500.

The fire, which started in the attic of the building, spread rapidly throughout the frame structure, and flying sparks from the blaze endangered neighboring residences. Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

LONG BEACH MAN DIES WHILE FISHING

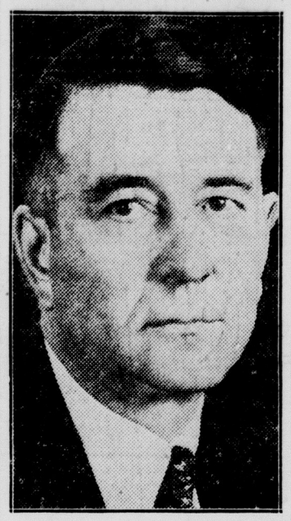

Harry Rakestraw, 68, of Long Beach, went to Huntington Beach today to fish from the municipal pier. He was accompanied by Miss Marjorie Weilbacker, also of Long Beach. At 9:30 o'clock, after the couple had been fishing only a short time, Mr. Rakestraw fell to the pavement, dead from a sudden heart attack.

Coroner Earl Abbey of Santa Ana ordered the body removed to the Dixon Mortuary in Huntington Beach.

Alleged refusal to complete a contract for the purchase of 500,000 pounds of seed lima beans was made the basis for a $5402.60 damage suit started in superior court today by the Haven Seed company. The Kellogg Seed Company of California, Ltd., was named defendant.

'CHAIN' MONEY RETURN DUE

Wednesday and Thursday mornings between 9 a. m. and 12 noon have been set aside by Mrs. Nora Allen, county probation officer, as the time when "investors" in the "9-for-1 Prosperity club" will receive their money which was seized and held by police in a raid on the establishment.

Last Friday when C. B. Brockett and Nat James pleaded guilty to charges of operating a lottery, Presiding Judge James L. Allen ordered the money turned over to the probation office for return to the rightful owners upon proper identification.

STREET CARS STOPPED

OMAHA, Neb., Monday, June 17. (AP)—Governor R. L. Cochran today brought the full power of his military dictatorship of Omaha into play in the Omaha street car strike and ordered cars off the streets by 11 a. m. as a result of the failure of the company to meet his demand that the concern name an arbitrator this morning. Two men have died and 150 have been injured in strike riots.

Governor Cochran took the action after the street car company had called a meeting of directors for 2 p. m., thus ignoring his ultimatum that the company's arbitrator be named by 10 a. m.

SUNDOWN STORIES

SEEKING RIP

By Mary Graham Bonner

Willy Nilly had almost made up his mind that there was no need to worry about Rip. The little man knew that his dog liked to take long cross-country runs and walks. The only thing that bothered him was that he had told Rip there would be a good supper awaiting him when he came back, and Rip had barked his agreement with this idea.

It was probably as Mrs. Quacko Duck had explained. Rip had been thinking about the exercise and fun he was to have and hadn't realized what he had said.

bother-hexer- ETOAIN UNUNN

But to make sure, the Puddle Muddlers all went about the countryside asking for Rip. Some had seen him when he had been only a little distance away from home. He had, they said, seemed to be thoroughly enjoying the good air, and one had seen him stop by a little brook for a drink of water.

"Christopher Columbus Crow," said Willy Nilly, "you might fly around these parts and make sure there have been no accidents. You can always discover everything."

Christopher Columbus Crow returned later to say that everything was quiet and that there had been no accidents.

Willy Nilly went over to call on Grandma and Grandpa Grouchy Galump. He knew they did not care particularly for his animal friends who were apt to be mischievous. But they were friendly and made no mention of Rip.

Back at home, Willy Nilly found it hard to get at any work. He so wished Rip had worn his collar with his license attached.

And Willy Nilly had cause for worry.

SEA WATER FIT TO DRINK

ASMARA, Eritrea, East Africa, Monday, June 17. (AP)—A miracle of water is being performed in the Italian East African colonies where tens of thousands of soldiers are massing for a possible expedition into Ethiopia.

When the Italian embattled divisions first began to land in Eritrea and Somaliland they found water bad and difficult to get. In many sections it was rationed out to them at about a quart a day.

Water Brought By Boat

Additional water at first was brought by transport ships and tankers, even from as far away as Naples. Mineral water was carried down for the hospitals.

Eritrea presented a greater problem than Somaliland; the latter colony is traversed by two rivers, the Ecebeli and the Giuba, but the water of the former is mostly saltish.

Distilling Plants Built

In Massaua, the main port of Eritrea, there is a huge distilling plant to make sea water drinkable. Engineers have also built a huge refrigerating plant to cool it.

In the interior of Eritrea sterilizing and potabilizing plants have been installed. Two big distilling plants have been erected in Mogadishu, the capital and port of Somaliland. Moreover, the Mogadishu aqueduct can now produce 400 cubic meters of water daily.

Surveillance over the waters of the rivers Scebeli and Giuba has also been instituted. The sources of the streams are in Abyssinia. Military authorities are taking no chances on poisoning.

Nearly every military term is French.

ENEMY'S KISS by Evelyn M. Winch

across and drew the curtains, then sitting at the desk, tried the top drawer of three. It was locked.

He sighed. He took out a penknife, slid it in between the drawer and the desk, and began steadily and with an increasing pressure, to force open the lock.

Alison woke with a start. For a moment it seemed to her dazed mind that she was back in the train with the steady beat of wheels under her ear. The next she met two imploring dark eyes fixed on her, and located the beating noise as the threshing of Gaffe's thick tail on the bare boards.

At the sleepy invitation of her extended hand, the dog jumped on the bed, wriggling delightedly and asking her in the clear language which all nice dogs use to make up and take some notice.

Alison sat up. The rain had stopped; pale wintry sunlight was leaking through the wooden slats of the green blind and she had the impression which sometimes comes immediately on waking, that she had overslept.

She glanced at her watch, then remembered that the glass had got broken on the journey and that it had stopped. She slid out from under her coat, feeling a little stiff, drew up the blind and flinging open the window, looked out.

The blue haze of an autumn morning was just lifting; seen by daylight the Croft House had dropped its mystery and had become just a house set in a sloping garden, with four fine old trees glowing red and gold on one side, a dismantled tennis court below and beyond a low fence, high green downs which rolled away towards a valley.

Even the room, seen by daylight, had no ghostly corners but was merely a rather shabby bedroom which badly needed redecorating.

She picked up her coat, put it on, opened the locked door and peeped out to be met by an overpoweringly delicious scent. Until that minute she had not realized how hungry she was or how good the smell of frying bacon could be.

The passage was empty, she ran along it, through the baize door, into the bathroom.

Small and white, with sunlight playing on the chrominum taps, it was hard to believe that she had stood there in terror a few hours ago. No grey horror lurked now in the glass as she splashed the clear, cold water on her face.

The road outside looked ordinary, macadamised and safe; the black dark had given place to a green rise of downs crowned by a sweep of sky dotted with flocculent clouds. To her sleep-rested nerves, the idea of ghosts seemed palpably absurd.

Washed, dressed and powdered, she followed the alluring scent of bacon into the kitchen.

"Hullo?"

"Hullo. How on earth?"

The oil-stove was burning; he was standing by it, frying-pan in hand. A shiny new kettle was singing on the flame, a rack of fresh toast browning on the other, while the deal table had been set out neatly with plates and cups for two.

"Hungry?"

"Starving!"

He surveyed the arrangements complacently.

"Not too bad?"

"Marvelous." Alison sniffed appreciatively. "But how did you do it?"

"Quite simple. Early this morning, as soon as it was light, I walked back into Warley and picked up my car; also the bacon, etc. I thought you'd better eat before you traveled." With a triumphant flourish he laid a plate of eggs and bacon in front of her, added a brown tea pot and tin of milk. "How's that?"

"Perfect!"

Sitting opposite to her at the other end of the deal table, he looked refreshingly normal, just a large young man, rumpled dark hair, twinkling blue eyes and an unshaved, cheerful face. Alison felt ashamed of the suspicions which she had harbored the night before. After all, he might have borrowed the collar—or the dog!

"Sleep well?"

"Wonderfully" she assured him. "But I do feel a selfish brute. You must be horribly tired, I'm afraid."

"Oh, I get a good many late nights one way and another," he said lightly. "I'd quite a peaceful one actually. No alarms of any kind. And I think I've solved the mystery."

"Oh? How?"

"Going out this morning I found a long painter's ladder up against the roof. Your ghostly friend may have climbed out through the attic skylight."

"But would Gaffe—"

"Not if he lurked up there until you'd gone to bed."

"I expect you've hit it," agreed Alison. "But I'm glad I didn't know that last night!"

"Don't worry. He's miles away by this time. You probably frightened him more than he frightened you. More tea?" He filled Alison's cup, bent to pat Gaffe as he added "Anyway, one thing's sure. He wasn't a ghost."

"Oh? Why?" She could not see his face as he stooped but noticed a sudden red flush spreading above his tennis collar.

"Because I found someone had been at the desk in the drawing-room. Have a look when you've finished breakfast. I don't know if he's taken anything but he's certainly broken all the drawers open."

"Some poor wretch of a tramp," she suggested.

"That's about it," he agreed. "By the way, there's been no word from your father."

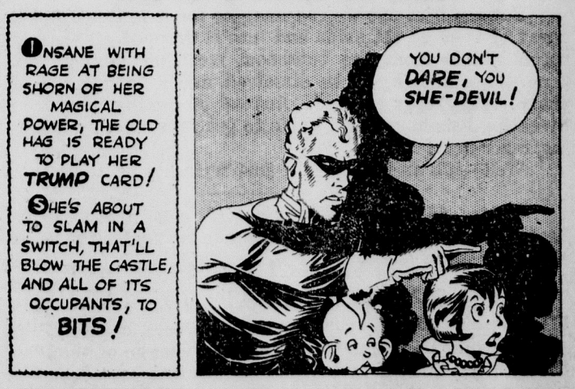

"I can't understand it." Alison frowned, wrinkling up her little nose as she always did when she was apprehensive. "You don't think there can've been an accident?"

"You'd have heard by now. As a matter of fact, there's been some sort of a mistake, for I asked a few questions in Warley, while I was shopping, and no one there seems to have heard of Mr. Rede. They say that the people who lived here were called Graham and before that there was a very sick old man and his wife who called themselves Potter." Was there a slightly unnatural infection in that casual tone?

A MAN HAS GONE

WHEN A MAN dies his community gives adequate appraisement of his services. That is why the wheels of industry and exchange of commerce in Riverside today were silent while the city bowed in sorrow over the passing of its illustrious citizen, Frank Miller.

In the chapel of his own creation, so exquisitely expressive of his spirituality, friend and pulpit offered a eulogy, the songs of faith and hope were sung, and God's voice spoke a benediction in a wealth of flora, which is man's futility when the heart cannot express itself.

Frank Miller came to California in a calmer and sweeter day. He passed through the quiet transition of neighborly intimacy into those years when mankind expressed itself in strife and war, but he never lost his faith in the hope that the cross would eventually bring all men within the shadows of its sufficiency.

He gave himself to this purpose and conviction. He was a messenger of international peace and world fellowship, a friendly host, and never ceased to spread the gospel of good will to men.

He left a fitting memorial of this devotion on Mount Rubidoux. How emblematic of that cross of Calvary which vivifies the ultimate in sacrifice.

While Frank Miller sipped from the crucible of life the nectar of wholesome fellowship, he returned in loving and human service vastly more than he extracted. There is little doubt but when the heavenly balances are made that he will be the "Abou Ben Adhem" of Leigh Hunt's immortal poem.

In future years his lovable character will accentuate into a beacon light for those who knew him, and his memory reflected in greater effulgence from the cross on Mount Rubidoux.

Research reveals that Indians prized corn for its color rather than taste. The white man seems to favor the kick.

THE GREAT BEER PROBLEM

BEER sales, some of the brewers complain, are a bit disappointing, and we should be derelict in our duty should we not at once get to work on this grave problem. It is obvious that new uses must be found at once for what the poets call the amber brew, and we hope science will drop everything and do its stuff.

Finding new uses for things is a modern idea. Take cheese, for instance. You used simply to eat it with bread. Then somebody came along and decided it should go into salads. Today it can be served—but not to us—with fish, mutton, strawberries, grapefruit, boiled lima beans and roast beef. It can also be used as a lubricant for the differential, for all we care.

However, beer presents a new problem. Up to now, it has simply been a beverage. You drank it, and that was that.

Maybe it could be used as a shampoo and dandruff cure. You can't tell. Whipped up to a foam and rubbed well into the scalp, it would probably cure anything and make the hair soft and fluffy.

It could also be used for boiling spinach, and thus perhaps making spinach edible. Perhaps.

But the best use we can imagine for it is this: Let a quart of beer be set aside and into it dropped all the old razor blades from the bathroom medicine cabinet. In time, these blades will be dissolved, and a good grade of sharp, tangy beer evolved. Instead of getting your iron by eating raisins, you'll be able to get your steel by drinking razor-beer.

Well—it's an idea. We're just trying to be helpful.

Unless the administration acts, says conservation leader, wild life will become a thing of the past. Not while there are night clubs.

FREE SPEECH IS SAFETY VALVE

THE right of free speech is the necessary basis of free government. The untrammeled interchange of thought, through the spoken and written and printed word, is the very essence of freedom. Suppression of this age-old right, dear as life itself, voiced in the immutable heritage of free men; guaranteed with all the solemnity of the fundamental law of the land, is the first crafty step of would-be despots. Tyranny can not endure the bright light of publicity, residing in the cherished right of free expression.

Not only does elementary justice demand free speech but simple wisdom likewise requires it. Suppression soon invites explosion. Steam boilers have safety-valves for this very reason. When the pressure gets dangerous the excess vapor escapes without violence. Confine it, repress it, sit on the safety-valve and disaster is sure to follow.

No ranting radical probably is half as dangerous as he pretends to be. Hissing steam does not necessarily imply claws and fangs. Rather, the louder the noise the less danger there is. London police have learned this lesson and rarely attempt to interfere with the most rabid spellbinders. Clenched fists and blackest curses may be hurled at royalty without protest. The police know it is harmless; likewise the agitators and the objects of their wrath. It is all part of the show and a good time is had by all.

We, however, take ourselves too seriously. We think it our bounden duty to reform somebody, or suppress or coerce somebody. We pick up the slightest remarks from the most irresponsible persons and clothe them with a significance never intended, much to the delight of the soapboxer whose egotism thereby is immensely flattered. Voltaire, sturdy champion of the oppressed, wrote to a friend who complained that he was suppressed, "I don't believe a word you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." Such independence, tempered by orderly process of law, must continue the bulwark of our liberties.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

Diary: Abroad and saw Gene Tunney bowling by. And came upon a fellow in 54th street with cymbals strapped to his ankles and a bass drum to his back, clashing and booming as he danced madly about in the street for pitched coins. He told me he sometimes made $10 a day.

O. O. McIntyre

Home and a portfolio of modern French art from Frank Crowninshield and John T. McCutcheon sent me the most exquisite symphony of words ever I read. Then Floyd Gibbons popped in with photographs of his hacienda in Miami and I learned he ate his biggest meal at midnight, always wandering into a strange restaurant.

To dinner with my wife at The Colony, palavering a moment with Mrs. Margaret Emerson and Herbert B. Swope and Jos. P. Kennedy. And John Baragwanath, gardeniaed and white tied, at a long side table looked as though he might be a guest of honor. So to Antoinette Perry's bon voyage to Margaret Pemberton.

No letter so yields to smooth alliteration in names as D. In the newspaper division there's Dorothy Dix and the former reporter Donald Dunbar. Then, of course, there are Doris Duke, Doris Doe, Donald Donahue, the gangster Dash Duvall and in Louisville there used to be a romantically named school teacher, Della Downing. Too, Daniel DeFoe and Daniel Deronda. And the fictitious ones: Danny Deever, Deadeye Dick and that new character in the Nebb's strip, Donna Dean.

There are names of fictional characters that somehow after many readings become amazingly real. I think of Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn, D'Artagnan, Ethan Frome, Sherlock Holmes, Sir Miles Hendon and "Beauty" Steele. One thinks of these as real folk. On the other hand, all of the Dickens characters remain unreal. I think of them as characters who never come out of a book.

And among the columnists whose fame endures especially in the middle west is the late Luke McLuke, of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Many columnar efforts today are variants of ideas he exploited. The following old gems are his: "Whoever called it near beer is a poor judge of distance" and "Prohibition has greatly changed our lives and habits. We used to get drunk down town and go home. Now we get drunk at home and go down town." Like Billy Ireland, the Ohio cartoonist, who died the other day, McLuke had many metropolitan offers but turned them down.

Among the billings in a 42d street burlesque house is a Fashion Plate Duo. Vauedville always had several pairs of these polished performers, similarly billed. Foremost I think were McWatters and Tyson. Then there was a team called Kelly and Violette. He sang "Egypt" and "Nobody's Lookin' but the Owl and the Moon." Violette, a genius for effulgence, had the Lillian Russell figure, the sweeping hat and a jewel bestudded shepherd's crook. Three times during the performance she changed her costume.

Although several weeks have passed, the ship news reporters are still disconsolable over the passing at sea of the cane-swinging Harry Acton. More than any other reporter of his time, he took the dull routine of ships going and coming and made it richly unpredictable. He was the first to sign a gangplank column. Every notable, departing or arriving, looked forward to his cheery rap on the cabin door. Charles M. Schwab told me he often had Acton's column clipped and sent wherever he was. Acton had a puckish attitude toward life and his talents, and I imagine that had he known he was to go to a better world he would have chosen the exit he made—while crossing the ocean.

Talks to Parents

By Brooke Peters Church

Always Ailing

Mrs. X "enjoyed" chronic ill health. No doctor could find any thing organically wrong with her. She declared they did not know, and had no sympathy with her symptoms. For lack, therefore, of more definite cause for her troubles, she laid them all to nerves. Sometimes she had nervous headaches, at others, nervous dyspepsia. Whatever the immediate symptom, it was acute and devastating and the whole family was made aware of it.

Connection Seen

The children especially suffered, for one of their mother's attacks was to them a signal for discomfort. They were never sure whether their misbehavior caused the illness or the illness their misbehavior. At all events they occurred so simultaneously that there seemed to be some connection between the two.

While the children were small they believed implicitly in their mother's ill health, and even felt that their father was hard and unsympathetic in his attitude, which was one of resignation, and not always gracious resignation. But in time the constantly recurring crises which upset their lives and plans, came to be a nuisance, and eventually they ceased to take any interest in them and ordered their lives quite independently of their mother. Finally, she lost contact with them, and found herself a cipher in their scheme of things.

Should Be Careful

Mothers especially should be very careful of complaining of ill health, for children are very keen and soon find out whether the ailments have any connection with events. Husbands and friends may accept the fiction, but children never.

It is better to suffer in silence if one is really ill than to call too often on the sympathies of the young, who out of their very limited experience have very little sympathy to give away.

Feeling Well Today?

By Dr. Iago Galdston

Self-Dieting

Much emphasis has been laid upon the dangers of self-medication. "Who treats himself has a fool for a patient" is the old saying. Diagnosing one's own ailments and prescribing for them according to folk medicine or patent remedy advertisements is indeed foolhardy.

And yet the hazards therein are in a measure less than are the hazards of self-dieting. Governmental and other agencies at least protect us against excessively dangerous drugs and medicaments. But there is apparently no law to protect us against the self-dieting dangers.

Illustration Given

Here are two illustrative cases taken from medical experience. A man of 56 years of age underwent an operation. He stood the operation well and was making what appeared to be an uneventful recovery.

Previous to the operation this patient was a large, roubust man weighing 180 pounds. During the convalescence period, however, he began to lose weight and strength.

After numerous laboratory and other tests were made it occurred to one physician to re-inquire into the dietetic habits of the patient. Then it was found that the man was eating only oatmeal porridge, condensed milk and bread. This patient had taken it upon himself to discard the diet ordered and to revert to his childhood favorite dish. When he was put back upon a balanced and adequate diet, he regained strength promptly.

Diet Is Fallacy

Another illustrative case is that of a young woman suffering from gastric disturbances essentially of a nervous origin. Following the popular fallacy which charges all sorts of ills to meats, she tried to subsist upon a diet of raw and cooked vegetables and fruits. She suffered much gastro-intestinal fermentation. She, too, recovered rapidly when put to bed for a period of six weeks and fed a well-balanced, bland diet.

Within the limits of adequate caloric intake and inclusion of the basic foods, one may choose certain and reject other dietetic articles. But "self-dieting" in extreme or bizarre form is dangerous.

What Other Editors Think

JAPAN STRIKES AGAIN

(William Allen White in his Emporia Gazette)

The present hour is proptious for a further Japanese advance on China. Japan grabs Chinese territory when she thinks the world is occupied. She made her famous 21 secret demands on China when the western world was occupied with the great war. She abandoned them after the war in response to the protests of America, which, in her preparedness campaign, had built a large and powerful navy.

In 1931, when America was occupied with the problems of the depression and England was in the throes of going off the gold standard, Japan again struck, in Shanghai and in Manchuria. Shanghai she relinquished—too many powerful nations with commercial interests there would have been antagonized; Manchuria she took, and, alarmed at this threat on her borders, Russia began concentrating a formidable army and aerial war machine, capable of striking into the hearts of Japan.

Then Italy marched on Ethiopia, and England, alarmed, began concentrating her fleet in the Mediterranean. So again Japan strikes, But this time not at Siberia, where Russia now has her armies, but at North China. She knows she need not fear England or America.

The one body which she might fear is the league of nations. But she knows that the league is impotent. She has found that the nations which make it up are not willing to back its judgments with armies to preserve world peace. She has discovered that its solemn warnings, stripped of any physical power of enforcement, are mere angry squawks.

When the world emerges from the depression, when each nation ceases to be preoccupied with its internal dissensions and can spare time to consider the common good of this planet, the world will find Japan mistress of Asia, her spry little generals perched on China, meeting the frowns of western disapproval with a disarming oriental grin.

CALIFORNIA'S YEAR

(Pasadena Star-News)

With the vacation season not in full swing until schools close for the summer, the advance guard of the tourist movement to California gives promise of much greater things to come.

Observers of the flow of traffic headed for California as a general objective and for the Pacific International exposition at San Diego as a special purpose, note the large percentage of out-of-state motor cars. All America is represented in this parade; Canada's provinces send large contingents. Countries abroad have heard of San Diego's picturesque fair and their people are following this incentive as a means to fulfill desires to see the Golden West.

It is California's great year for the tourist.

Ants have been observed to set broken legs of injured companions in a kind of plaster.

Howdy, bill collectors! It's no use your gathering around the front door; I don't get paid until tomorrow.

But that's nothing. So will a bill collector.

YE DIARY

Lay late abed, dreaming of the golden days of childhood, in special of journeying out to the Santa Ana river bed to watch the giant steelhead come in, of watching Laurette Taylor in "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," of playing baseball against the gang from the Plaza schoole, and of traveling over to Anacapa island on the launch Traveler I. And so up, feeling as old as Methuselah, and to the printery.

Rotary's New Presidents

The following is the first of a series of sketches of new Orange county Rotary club presidents, as prepared by The Rotary Wheelbarrow, the official publication.

STANLEY E. GOODE — Santa Ana's latest discovery as a leader.

Stanley originated in Denver, Colorado, July 7, 1888. Thus he gets instituted as president of Santa Ana Rotary just before his 47th birthday.

As a boy, he observed the statesmen of his day and aspired to be in diplomatic service. So he went to the devil, at least so far as a printing shop could lead him. His first job was trying to put fresh inkstains on a printer's towel. He got through North Denver High school and wandered off to Stanford, perhaps hoping that the Hooverian influence might help him into public life. Later courses in the famous university of hard knocks finished him as a politician.

He had a year in a law office in Los Angeles, and then went to Portland, Oregon, to help the Ford Motor company get started. He managed a ranch for the Whiting company in Orange county until he decided that he would rather sell land than plow it and so for 16 years he has been promoting prosperity in our midst by realtor methods.

Married in 1912 if he has not mistaken the date. Has two children, a boy and a girl, according to the 1930 census, which he helped to direct, hence its accuracy. He likes to fish and to read history. He cherishes a secret ambition to "write something." Well, he can send us some postcards from Mexico.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Around and About Town

With C. F. (Skinny) SKIRVIN

Orange county, at least ever since I have had any information about it, has been fighting and negotiating over the water supply. The demand has increased because the irrigated acreage has extended. If this method keeps up how long will it take for both the supply and the acreage to fail? If we get too many oranges we use up too much water, and if we can't get the water we can't grow oranges. It's another case of supply and demand, and it may result in the supply being more than the demand. The old lesson of a creamery for every crossroad, and a tire factory for every city should not be forgotton.

My friend Paul Rogers decides he wants to give his tonsils away. So he starts with a local anaesthetic. When the excavation is over the nurse asks him how he feels and he says fine. Then he flops to the floor. But you can't keep a good man down so Paul is moving around again. He says he has heard that one swallow does not make a summer, but he is wondering if it will be all summer before he can take a swallow.

The Journal runs a department about what "John Citrus Saw." He saw one the other day and was asked to close his eyes.

Citrus growers assembled in Santa Ana to discuss the industry from almost every angle. It's an interesting activity. It means more to Orange county than any other business except oil. So when Dean Waynick reports on the progress of oranges during the year his statements are accepted as representing an expert opinion. But after it is all recapitulated the fact still remains that the grower has to get approximately a dollar a field box to make the investment profitable from his standpoint. The scientific care has its place, but it won't have a place if the grower cannot make money out of orange growing.

If the legislature had adjourned the first week we wouldn't have had so much taxes to pay the last week. Anyway I'm in favor of their coming home, and in no hurry for them to go back. The last tax slam was at the oil industry. Just as soon as oil pokes its head above the ground there is always a legislature to take a rap at it.

Saturday noon. Golf. Desks slam. Books put away. Cash register inspected and the old bus moves toward the country club. The tired business man just begins to work. I would play golf too, but you have to keep score and hit the ball, and then chase the darned little thing all over the acres that go to make up a golf course. Judge Patton of Huntington Beach advised me to keep out of the game. He was afraid I might get lost.

And then there is that certain party who is on his way to Mexico City who carried a check with him as far as Indio before he discovered that it should have been delivered to a Santa Ana institution. Well, anyway Les, I won't say anything about it—much.

Some one brings to my desk the information that Frank Koss caught the old Braddock spirit and smashed into the optics of a "gimmie" customer who took him literally. Prices are entirely too close for comfort since the NRA decision, but when you get 'em down to the "gimmie" basis that's farther than Frank cared to go without an argument. My informant tells me it was one-round affair.

Going here and going there, going places—everywhere. It is vacation time. Five out of four—no, the percentage is too high. What I started out to say was that four out of five have already decided on their vacation time and place. So have I. Starting from the corner of Oak and Beverly to the down town area, and then back again.

An acquaintance who has an economic trend slips into an alley to get from one street to another, solely in the interest of economy—sole is right.

How long have you been with the organization with which you are now affiliated? How much money have you made during this identification in salary? What have you done with it? Now there's a little symposium that might afford you some reflection. I met a friend not long ago who had received approximately $86,000 in salary. When I asked him what had become of it he gave the will-o'-the-whisp answer, and I understood him. There still remains the satisfaction that a man must amount to something to continue an association which represents that earning capacity. Life isn't represented so much in what we have as what we are.
